MURRAY ORGANIZED STEEL INDUSTRY

Election Of New President Takes Place At Convention In Atlantic City

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22.—The C. I. O. elected Philip Murray to its presidency today, as John L. Lewis retired from the office.

Hailed as "an industrial statesman" by retiring President Lewis, the new CIO leader was chosen by acclamation in CIO's annual convention.

Organized Steel Industry

A sandy-haired Scot, Murray led the drive in which C. I. O. organized the steel industry. He is 54 years old, a lifelong friend of Lewis and has served as vice-president of the United Mine Workers since 1920. He has been a CIO vice-president for three years.

Murray was nominated in a demonstration of CIO unity that found John Lewis and CIO Vice-President Sidney Hillman joining in speeches in his behalf. These two forgot their differences that have placed them at odds during the convention to join in the choice of a new leader for CIO.

Roosevelt Supporter

A noisy ten-minute demonstration and a snake-dance to the music of a bagpipe band that magically turned up at just the right moment, preceded the election.

Today's switch in leadership placed in the C. I. O. presidency a man who has been a firm and constant supporter of President Roosevelt. John Lewis, stepping out of office, turned away from the new deal and in a radio speech on Oct. 25 announced support for Republican Presidential Candidate Wendell L. Willkie.

In that speech October 25, Lewis told the world that he would relinquish CIO leadership if Mr. Roosevelt was re-elected, and today he formally fulfilled that promise.

Hitler Is Pushing Diplomatic Drive To Line Up Balkans

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Chancellor Hitler pushed his diplomatic offensive on the European continent today to line up the Balkans with axis plans for a "new European order".

Premier Ion Antonescu and Foreign Minister Prince Costin Sturza arrived in Berlin to align Rumania with the axis-Japanese economic and military alliance which Hungary joined several days ago.

German authorities declared the diplomatic drive is being pushed along the intensified air and sea war against England.

Expect Three More To Sign

With the next few days scheduled to witness a parade of foreign official visitors to Berlin, it was expected at least three more Balkan states will sign the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact.

Tomorrow, it was believed, Antonescu and Sturza will sign for Rumania, and on Monday, according to this schedule, Premier Tuka will sign for Slovakia. He is leaving Pressburg for Berlin tomorrow. On Wednesday, Berlin quarters anticipated, Bulgaria will join the alliance.

In addition, it was rumored, Yugoslavian representatives may come to Berlin early next month for a similar purpose.

Whether what were termed "rapid events" will occur in Bulgaria next week could not be ascertained in Berlin, but it was regarded as significant that Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey and a famous Nazi "trouble-shooter", called at Sofia en route back to Ankara from the German capitla.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop conferred with Antonescu at noon and will hold a reception for him tonight. During the afternoon Antonescu will talk with Hitler.

This morning Hitler received the new Rumanian minister to Berlin together with a special Rumanian envoy, Valer Pop.

Explosion Rocks Big Restaurant In Philadelphia

Police Probing Blast, Many Windows In Adjoining Shops Are Shattered

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—Exploding with a roar that aroused hundreds of mid-city residents, a bomb today damaged the interior of Stouffer's restaurant and shattered a dozen bulk windows in Chestnut street stores.

The blast ripped out the door of the restaurant and made a shamble of tables and chairs near the cashier's cage. Preliminary police reports indicated no one was hurt in the apparently deserted shop on the first floor of the Weightman building.

Vernon B. Stouffer, president of Stouffer's Corporation, was reported to be in Cleveland today. In 1938 his testimony helped jail Don Campbell and John Magee, alleged labor racketeers, following an investigation of labor extortion by Cleveland police.

A passerby reported that a black sedan containing three or four men was driven slowly past the restaurant shortly before the explosion. Police scout cars and fire engines were on hand shortly after the detonation.

Business Returns To Normal Today

Part Of Pittsburgh's Residents Observed Thanksgiving Yesterday

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22—Business returned to normalcy in the Pittsburgh area today after some of the residents finished celebrating a strange, half-baked sort of a holiday which saw banks, courts and most civic offices closed, but department and other stores wide open.

Restaurants, however, were taking no chances. They served turkey yesterday and plan to do so again on Thursday. And, strange as it may seem, in the county jail and in the county workhouse, inmates were served a special meal yesterday, with prospects of another "supersupper" on November 28.

Mostly, it seemed to be a matter of whether residents chose to observe President Roosevelt's "streamlined" Thanksgiving, or the traditional one proclaimed by Gov. Arthur H. James.

Expect Three More To Sign

With the next few days scheduled to witness a parade of foreign official visitors to Berlin, it was expected at least three more Balkan states will sign the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact.

Tomorrow, it was believed, Antonescu and Sturza will sign for Rumania, and on Monday, according to this schedule, Premier Tuka will sign for Slovakia. He is leaving Pressburg for Berlin tomorrow. On Wednesday, Berlin quarters anticipated, Bulgaria will join the alliance.

In addition, it was rumored, Yugoslavian representatives may come to Berlin early next month for a similar purpose.

Whether what were termed "rapid events" will occur in Bulgaria next week could not be ascertained in Berlin, but it was regarded as significant that Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey and a famous Nazi "trouble-shooter", called at Sofia en route back to Ankara from the German capitla.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop conferred with Antonescu at noon and will hold a reception for him tonight. During the afternoon Antonescu will talk with Hitler.

This morning Hitler received the new Rumanian minister to Berlin together with a special Rumanian envoy, Valer Pop.

Fleeing Italian Troops Pursued By Greek Army

By A. E. ANGELOPOULOS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ATHENS, Nov. 22—The heroic little army of Greece, battling against overwhelming odds, scored a major victory today by wresting the strategic Albanian city of Koritza from Italian hands and pushing farther northward on the heels of Premier Mussolini's fleeing troops.

An official communique announced the capture of Koritza to the exultant populace a short while after Premier General John Metaxas personally told cheering Athenians of the victory in a brief address from the steps of military headquarters.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The London Daily Mail reported from the Yugoslavian frontier that the Greeks had reached the town of Pogradet on Chrid Lake 20 miles north of Koritza.)

Explosion Rocks Big Restaurant In Philadelphia

Police Probing Blast, Many Windows In Adjoining Shops Are Shattered

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—Exploding with a roar that aroused hundreds of mid-city residents, a bomb today damaged the interior of Stouffer's restaurant and shattered a dozen bulk windows in Chestnut street stores.

The blast ripped out the door of the restaurant and made a shamble of tables and chairs near the cashier's cage. Preliminary police reports indicated no one was hurt in the apparently deserted shop on the first floor of the Weightman building.

Vernon B. Stouffer, president of Stouffer's Corporation, was reported to be in Cleveland today. In 1938 his testimony helped jail Don Campbell and John Magee, alleged labor racketeers, following an investigation of labor extortion by Cleveland police.

Experts from the police bomb and radical squads reportedly discovered fragments of an explosive on the scene. A cordon of police was thrown about the place to guard against other possible blasts as more than 1,000 spectators quickly gathered.

A passerby reported that a black sedan containing three or four men was driven slowly past the restaurant shortly before the explosion. Police scout cars and fire engines were on hand shortly after the detonation.

Albanian Town Is Captured By Greek Troops During Day

ITALIANS RETREAT FROM STRONGHOLD

Athens Also Reports All Italian Troops Are Driven Out Of Greece

By A. E. ANGELOPOULOS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ATHENS, Nov. 22.—Occupation of the Albanian town of Koritza, by hard-driving Greek troops was announced officially today.

Standing on the steps of the Greek military headquarters in Athens, Premier Gen. John Metaxas made the dramatic announcement in person to a large crowd of jubilant Athenians in the street.

Cheers welled up from the throng as the premier told them of the first major Greek victory of the war.

Italians Retreat

The town of Koritza, abandoned by the Italians who retreated to the west from the important southern Albanian military base, was seized and occupied by the Greeks after they first obtained a grip on its eastern suburbs.

Before noon, it was stated in Athens, Greek troops were occupying positions north of Koritza which had been in Italian hands only this morning.

This maneuver was carried out by advanced Greek units.

Entrenching themselves in the suburbs, these detachments waited for the main body of Greek troops to move up. Occupation of the entire town then was affected.

(Editor's Note: An Italian military bulletin admitted evacuation of Fascist troops from Koritza and said

Business Returns To Normal Today

Part Of Pittsburgh's Residents Observed Thanksgiving Yesterday

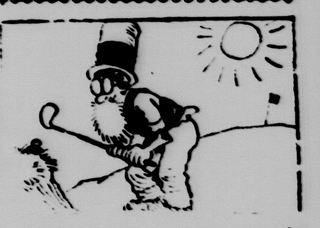

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22—Business returned to normalcy in the Pittsburgh area today after some of the residents finished celebrating a strange, half-baked sort of a holiday which saw banks, courts and most civic offices closed, but department and other stores wide open.

Restaurants, however, were taking no chances. They served turkey yesterday and plan to do so again on Thursday. And, strange as it may seem, in the county jail and in the county workhouse, inmates were served a special meal yesterday, with prospects of another "super-supper" on November 28.

Mostly, it seemed to be a matter of whether residents chose to observe President Roosevelt's "streamlined" Thanksgiving, or the traditional one proclaimed by Gov. Arthur H. James.

Will Ask U. S. Debt Limit Raise

Congress Will Get Proposal

Formal Request To Be Made To Raise Limit To $60,000,000,000 Or $65,000,000,000

DEFENSE PROGRAM COSTING HUGE SUM

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—A formal request to raise the federal public debt limit to between $60,000,000,000 and $65,000,000,000 will be placed before Congress immediately after it convenes in January, fiscal officials indicated today.

The proposal of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to boost the present $49,000,000,000 limit probably will be contained in President Roosevelt's 1942 budget message which goes to Congress immediately after his opening annual statement.

Fiscal Program

Budget estimates now in preparation point to a fiscal program of nearly $18,000,000,000 for operation of the government and the national defense during the fiscal year starting July 1, 1941.

It appears likely that the budget will be close to balance as far as operations of the non-defense governmental activities are concerned. Increased revenues resulting from better business conditions and higher taxes will be nearly sufficient to pay the normal costs of government.

The defense program, however, will superimpose approximately $9,000,000,000 on the regular operating costs, according to unofficial estimates.

To this must be added some $2,000,000,000 of interest charges on the rapidly-mounting public debt, an item not listed in computing the normal governmental expenditures.

Raids Under Way

Under the direction of Dies, a score of committee agents are conducting raids in many cities, seizing records of organizations allegedly formed for the purpose of spreading Nazi and Fascist propaganda. Cities included in the new raids are Boston, New Orleans, Detroit, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis and Minneapolis.

Charges made by the committee in its "white paper" of widespread Nazi propaganda in the United States, supported by numerous photo-copies of documents and copies of letters and cablegrams, are being studied by the state and justice departments.

Pa Newc noted two youthful but loyal Ne-Ca-Hi rooters who were without finances, but who were bent on seeing the game in Warren yesterday afternoon. GREEK TROOPS TAKE KORITZA; ITALIANS FLEE

two Italian divisions had retreated to the west, suffering considerable losses.)

Complete Occupation

Complete occupation of Koritza was carried out at 10:30 a. m., according to last minute military dispatches.

These reports claimed that the Albanian populace emerged from their homes to welcome the "Grecian liberators."

(Editor's Note: Italy conquered Albania in a short "blitz" war launched on Good Friday of last year.)

The Greeks moved in after Italian artillery which had been shelling the town since yesterday from the hills to the north and west were silenced by Greek cannon fire and aerial attacks this morning.

Reports from the battle front described the war materials and booty captured by the triumphant Greeks as "fantastic" in amount.

Huge Booty

These reports claimed that two entire Italian motorized divisions and sufficient war material and equipment for six divisions fell into Greek hands.

By mid-day, the entire city was taken over by the Greek military. The flag of Athens was flown over the town hall by invitation of the Koritza municipal authorities.

Church bells were rung in every town and village throughout Greece to signalize the victory. Athens, draped in flags and bunting, was the scene of wild enthusiasm. Cafes and restaurants were crowded with Athenians drinking toats to the army; and churches were filled with the devout who offered thanks to providence.

Couriers carried the news of Koritza's capture to every hamlet throughout Greece and the islands of the Archipelago.

Greek Troops Welcomed

(Editor's Note: A Reuter (British) news agency dispatch from Athens said that the Greek troops were given a tumultuous reception by the population of Koritza. Crowds broke through a police cordon as the victorious soldiers marched in, cheering for Premier John Metaxas and General Alexander Papagos, Greek commander-in-chief, Reuters said.)

At the same time other Greek forces swept within reach of Argyrocastro, thereby placing two Italian strongholds in danger of speedy capture.

The advances of the victorious Greeks threatened to wreck the entire Italian campaign. Since Wednesday not a single armed Italian has been on Greek soil.

Report reaching Athens indicated these spectacular triumphs for the hard-fighting Ezvones are part of a grand Greek strategy, under which the Greeks are carrying out a giant enveloping maneuver along the entire battle front to surround and bottle up scores of thousands of Gen. Ubaldo Soddu's fleeing Italian legions.

No Italian Troops In Greece

Simultaneously the ministry of national security announced that no Italian planes bombed the Greek interior yesterday.

But it was learned, the ministry claimed, that Italian forces retreating from the Kalamas river and Igoumenitsa sectors burned and ravished the countryside and "murdered some officials."

Later reports said the Italians "pillaged and burned" Igoumenitsa, shot a number of its leading citizens and "carried off others as hostages."

(Editor's note: A Reuters (British) dispatch purporting to come from the island of Corfu said fires and explosions were seen on the Greek mainland opposite Corfu all night. The explosions continued today, the report stated.

(Reuters also reported that lights were observed moving northward towards Santi Quaranta, an Albanian port, and said it was probable that the retreating Italians were destroying ammunition dumps and roads.)

By hurling the Italians back across the Albanian border, Greece became the first invaded nation in the present European war to throw out the invaders.

Will Ask U. S. Debt Limit Raise

Congress Will Get Proposal

Formal Request To Be Made To Raise Limit To $60,000,000,000 Or $65,000,000,000

DEFENSE PROGRAM COSTING HUGE SUM

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—A formal request to raise the federal public debt limit to between $60,000,000,000 and $65,000,000,000 will be placed before Congress immediately after it convenes in January, fiscal officials indicated today.

The proposal of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to boost the present $49,000,000,000 limit probably will be contained in President Roosevelt's 1942 budget message which goes to Congress immediately after his opening annual statement.

Fiscal Program

Budget estimates now in preparation point to a fiscal program of nearly $18,000,000,000 for operation of the government and the national defense during the fiscal year starting July 1, 1941.

It appears likely that the budget will be close to balance as far as operations of the non-defense governmental activities are concerned. Increased revenues resulting from better business conditions and higher taxes will be nearly sufficient to pay the normal costs of government.

The defense program, however, will superimpose approximately $9,000,000,000 on the regular operating costs, according to unofficial estimates.

To this must be added some $2,000,000,000 of interest charges on the rapidly-mounting public debt, an item not listed in computing the normal governmental expenditures.

column" activities in the United States may not be confined to agents and friends of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance, but may also deal with British propaganda.

Raids Under Way

Under the direction of Dies, a score of committee agents are conducting raids in many cities, seizing records of organizations allegedly formed for the purpose of spreading Nazi and Fascist propaganda. Cities included in the new raids are Boston, New Orleans, Detroit, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis and Minneapolis.

Charges made by the committee in its "white paper" of widespread Nazi propaganda in the United States, supported by numerous photo-copies of documents and copies of letters and cablegrams, are being studied by the state and justice departments.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Red Hurricane won ten and tied one game, for the best record made for many seasons, and had one of the best teams that ever represented the school on the gridiron.

Good fortune followed the New Castle High football team this fall. Not one time out of eleven games did the boys play in the rain. This is unusual for the number of games. And only twice did the locals play on really wet surf—Johnstown and Warren.

Pa Newc noted two youthful but loyal Ne-Ca-Hi rooters who were without finances, but who were bent on seeing the game in Warren yesterday afternoon. The boys were only about 10 years of age, but they were wise in the ways of the hitchhiker, and had planted themselves at the corner of Grant and Jefferson streets, looking for a ride, early in the afternoon.

Real Indian summer weather has been noted for the last three days, following the snow over the week end. Thursday, the mercury got up to 65 degrees. However, it seems too good to last very long, and an abrupt change is apt to occur most any time.

SMOKE SCARE

City firemen were called to the home of Albert Knight, 123½ Norris way, Thursday afternoon at 2:55 o'clock, when smoke was found filling the home. Investigation revealed a brick had fallen out of the chimney.

GREEK TROOPS TAKE KORITZA; ITALIANS FLEE

two Italian divisions had retreated to the west, suffering considerable losses.)

Complete Occupation

Complete occupation of Koritza was carried out at 10:30 a. m., according to last minute military dispatches.

These reports claimed that the Albanian populace emerged from their homes to welcome the "Grecian liberators."

(Editor's Note: Italy conquered Albania in a short "blitz" war launched on Good Friday of last year.)

The Greeks moved in after Italian artillery which had been shelling the town since yesterday from the hills to the north and west were silenced by Greek cannon fire and aerial attacks this morning.

Reports from the battle front described the war materials and booty captured by the triumphant Greeks as "fantastic" in amount.

Huge Booty

These reports claimed that two entire Italian motorized divisions and sufficient war material and equipment for six divisions fell into Greek hands.

By mid-day, the entire city was taken over by the Greek military. The flag of Athens was flown over the town hall by invitation of the Koritza municipal authorities.

Church bells were rung in every town and village throughout Greece to signalize the victory. Athens, draped in flags and bunting, was the scene of wild enthusiasm. Cafes and restaurants were crowded with Athenians drinking toats to the army, and churches were filled with the devout who offered thanks to providence.

Couriers carried the news of Koritza's capture to every hamlet throughout Greece and the islands of the Archipelago.

Greek Troops Welcomed

(Editor's Note: A Reuter (British) news agency dispatch from Athens said that the Greek troops were given a tumultuous reception by the population of Koritza. Crowds broke through a police cordon as the victorious soldiers marched in, cheering for Premier John Metaxas and General Alexander Papagos, Greek commander-in-chief, Reuters said.)

At the same time other Greek forces swept within reach of Argyrocastro, thereby placing two Italian strongholds in danger of speedy capture.

The advances of the victorious Greeks threatened to wreck the entire Italian campaign. Since Wednesday not a single armed Italian has been on Greek soil.

Report reaching Athens indicated these spectacular triumphs for the hard-fighting Ezvones are part of a grand Greek strategy, under which the Greeks are carrying out a giant enveloping maneuver along the entire battle front to surround and bottle up scores of thousands of Gen. Ubaldo Soddu's fleeing Italian legions.

No Italian Troops In Greece

Simultaneously the ministry of national security announced that no Italian planes bombed the Greek interior yesterday.

But it was learned, the ministry claimed, that Italian forces retreating from the Kalamas river and Igoumenitsa sectors burned and ravished the countryside and "murdered some officials."

Later reports said the Italians "pillaged and burned" Igoumenitsa, shot a number of its leading citizens and "carried off others as hostages."

(Editor's note: A Reuters (British) dispatch purporting to come from the island of Corfu said fires and explosions were seen on the Greek mainland opposite Corfu all night. The explosions continued today, the report stated.

(Reuters also reported that lights were observed moving northward towards Santi Quaranta, an Albanian port, and said it was probable that the retreating Italians were destroying ammunition dumps and roads.)

By hurling the Italians back across the Albanian border, Greece became the first invaded nation in the present European war to throw out the invaders.

well as those in central Europe, informed Italian sources asserted today.

These quarters revealed that Spain is engaging in intense diplomatic activity. Here is the situation as summed up in Rome:

"Spanish diplomacy, in cooperation with strong currents in the Latin American countries, is deeply interested in restoration and maintenance of world peace.

HARRIET TRUBY TO WED RANDALL BOOK

One of the seasons loveliest announcement parties, took place Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Phillip Winter on Martin street, who entertained in a gracious manner, members of the Five-W club, and other guests, as a medium of making known the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Harriet Truby and Randall Book, both of this city.

The early period was devoted to bridge contests, prizes going to Mrs. Charles Matthews and Miss Elba Scott. A dainty shoulder corsage was presented Miss Truby, as a remembrance from the hostess.

When lunch time arrived, the assemblage was seated at tables appointed in keeping with the Thanksgiving holiday season, which too suggested the nuptial motif. Novel individual little turkey favors, with midget calendars concealed on the back, cleverly told the news. A pencil line drawn over the month of "December" read "Harriet And Randall". The date will be announced. Aiding with the menu, Mrs. Winter had Mrs. Pearl Harlan, aunt of the honoree and Miss Ruth Johnson.

Miss Truby, granddaughter of Mrs. Harriet Gloss of Winter avenue, with whom she makes her home, is a teacher in the Mahoningtown school. Mr. Book resides at R. D. 2, Slippery Rock, and is engaged in farming.

Special guests included Genevra Walker, Mrs. Charles Donnelly, Marian Truby, Mrs. George Book, Mrs. Pearl Harlan and Miss Elba Scott.

On December 5, the club group will meet with Mrs. Howard Reynolds on East Washington street.

Amerita Club

Mrs. A. M. Perifano of East Washington street will entertain the Amerita club members on December 5, instead of December 12, as previously announced.

HUNGARY UNDER THE NAZI YOKE

HUNGARY'S formal induction into the German-Italian-Japanese alliance carries forward Hitler's program for a vast European and Asiatic coalition against Britain.

For some time Hungary had been regarded as wholly within the Nazi sphere of influence and as a "yes-yes" sychophant of the Reich. But there was always the possibility that it would continue to maintain at least the appearance of independence.

The ceremony in Vienna this week effectually removed that possibility and Hungary took on the yoke of Nazi domination, a yoke presumably soon to be humbly accepted, also, by Rumania, Bulgaria and Spain.

With Hitler's iron boot stamping down freedom in the Balkans, Jugoslavia's plight is obvious. The Jugoslavs deeply resent the Axis advance. No less do the Turks, who have indicated that they will fight if Bulgaria grants right of way for passage of Hitler's troops through its territory or if the Bulgars themselves make any move toward the Mediterranean.

But will the Turks be able to stand up for their convictions? Turkey is friendly with both Britain and Soviet Russia. But if Stalin, fearing to incur Hitler's wrath, puts pressure on the Turks to side with the Axis, it will be difficult for the Ankara government to resist the Nazi march toward the Near East and the Suez Canal.

Hitler's objective in this wide diplomatic drive may be to set up a fear-inspiring backdrop for new peace gestures toward Britain. Yet the threat of a widened and more furious war is inherent in the Fuehrer's far-flung activities.

It is a prospect in which only the courage of the British people and the striking-power of the British navy and air force offer hope.

AN AMERICAN IMMORTAL

Thirty-six years before the founding of the Hall of Fame at New York University a weary, poverty-stricken musician and song writer died at the age of thirty-eight, believing he was a failure.

Now Dr. Harry Chase, Chancellor of New York University and temporary director of the Hall of Fame, announces that Stephen Collins Foster was the only one of 141 nominated candidates to receive the required three-fifths vote of the 110 Americans who comprise the college of electors. This is the first time since the Hall was founded that only one nominee has been selected. Foster will be the first musician to take his place among America's immortals.

Although Stephen Foster's name is unfamiliar to many people, it is safe to say that everyone in America knows his songs. They more than immortalize the charm and melancholy of the vanished South. They are part of America's history and folk-lore. From Maine to Florida, from California to New York, the strains of "Old Black Joe," "O Susanna," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground,' and "My Old Kentucky Home' are familiar wherever groups of people gather to sing informally. And these songs are enthusiastically received from the concert stage.

The creator of this simple, moving music has received at last the fame denied him during his short life. His name was preferred to those of such distinguished men as Walter Reed, Sidney Lanier, Henry Thoreau and Booker T. Washington. It is a cold reward, perhaps, but the best that can be done at this late date for the memory of an American genius who, out of his own sadness and discouragement, created songs which have given pleasure to millions of Americans.

LET'S PROFIT BY EXPERIENCE

Sometimes the most hopeless of all tasks is discussing the strategy of the football game on the night after the contest is over. The same thing might be said, in effect, of the recent discussions in France of the reason why that brave country lost its unequal war against the Nazis. But such a discussion has its interest and value for us if we will seek to profit by the lessons of the blitzkreig in France and the causes leading up to it.

The Vichy government recently issued a statement which seeks in part at least to account for the French debacle. It is said that the French armies, when the situation became critical, were outnumbered in men, and were far inferior in the amount of fighting equipment. It is stated, for example, that Germany had 7,500 fighting tanks, to 2,000 for the French, while the Nazis had 5,000 airplanes to a pitiful number of 520 for the French. Small wonder then that the American correspondents with the advancing German armies reported that the skies were comparatively free of French airplanes.

The reason for this wide divergence in the amount of men and material is given as partially political and partly military. For instance, it is said that the socialistic French government had taught the people to believe that adequate national defense was not so important as plenty of leisure for everybody, with no thought of sacrifice for the common good. It is added that the French relied too much on the strength of the much-advertised Maginot Line and believed it would be a good substitute for tanks, airplanes and cannon.

Just how far the French were mistaken in both instances is now a matter of history. There is no use crying over spilled milk but the fact remains that we can draw a lesson for ourselves out of the unhappy experience of France. We are now engaged in a tremendous, if somewhat belated, defensive armament program. Our first duty is to complete such a program. But if we look upon it as a vehicle for restoring prosperity to the country, because the steel industry is booming, and believe that it will be completed without any sacrifice on the part of the people then we, too, will be grievously mistaken.

What we want therefore is rearmament for defense and the maintenance of peace. And we want, too, to be thinking about how we are going to make arrangements to pay for it.

Perhaps one reason Adolf Hitler hasn't been able to invade England is that the Trojan Horse can't swim the English channel.

The season soon will be here when mankind will remember that despite bombing planes the sky is still the home of the stars, moon, sun and Santa Claus.

When Ambassador Grew mentioned peace in a speech in Tokyo the other day, Emperor Hirohita nodded approvingly. Maybe the Mikado was sleepy.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

MUSIC AND ITS VALUE IN SCHOOLS

I am fifty-six years old. One Saturday afternoon, when I was a boy about twelve years old, I heard bagpipe music rendered by two traveling Scotchmen. It started up a few hundred yards away, on the hill in front of a neighbor's house.

Nothing I had ever heard sounded so wonderful to me. Excepting the harmonica, organ, and banjo, I had never heard a musical instrument. However, we did do some singing at home, church and school. A good many thousand other persons my age had no more exposure to instrumental music in their childhood, especially in rural places.

At the first teachers' institute I attended at the age of 16 when I began to teach, a hired string quartette played. Even in 1920 when I began lecturing at teachers' institute, the music was supplied from outside the schools. It was some years later before I heard an orchestra by school children at such meetings.

School Musicians

A year later when I lectured before the county teachers' institute of Franklin, county, Pa., which I first attended as a teacher 39 years before, excellent music was furnished by orchestras and choruses of school children. During the last 15 years the music supplied at conventions of teachers and parents in all the cities, counties and states where I have lectured has practically always been rendered by school children, and it has been of very high quality.

In Leesville, Crawford county, Ohio, is a good sample of a forward-looking music program by rural children, nearly all of whom live on farms. Out of the total enrrollment of 248 children 169 grade children and 179 from grades 7 to 12 inclusive), 43 children of the grades and high school are in band and orchestra classes. The school band has 27 children; orchestra, 27; drum corps, 12; chorus, 30. Then there are various ensembles as string, woodwind, trios, vocal groups, which have appeared on many programs and have broadcast on the air.

Special Direction

As you might suppose, there is leadership in this place. Mr. H. L. Bland is the musical director. He is known nationally, being the author of the 30-minute series which include "Santa Claus," "Lincoln," "Washington," and "Pilgrims, each centered about music of the time indicated. These famous little operettas have been worked out by Mr. Bland with the aid of the rural school children of the Leesville area.

In these days of million-dollar stadia, used a few times a year, and bulging gate receipts at football games, it might be well to consider the character value of group music at school.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

MORE HOMES

Far from being bound and tongue-tied by doubts and uncertainty, great numbers of young people have found their worries and indecisions completely swept away by the deepening maelstrom in Europe and the conscription in this country.

The evidence just supplied by thirty-four of the nation's leading citizens indicates Dan Cupid has just been helping an unusual number of young men take positive action on the question, "To be, or not to be, wed." During August the number of marriage licenses issued in those cities was greater than in the preceding August by sixty-seven per cent.

And as goes the trend in marriage, so goes the trend in home-building, say housing experts. They report the conscription act had already set in motion a nation-wide boom in low-cost houses and small-rental apartments. The conscript debt moratorium, which became a law October 18, will scarcely discourage that drive.

Obviously, it is not just the defense industries which today are headed toward new records. That increasingly busy partnership between Dan Cupid and the nation's home builders show them bent on a boom of their own and doing quite well, thank you!

"How long should I remain engaged? I do not want to appear to my fiance to be in too great a hurry to drag him to the altar."—Serephina

There is nothing more destructive to the nervous systems of both a fiancee and her fiance than a long engagement. And nothing is more destructive to their love which wanes and cools during a long period of courtship. The wise girl makes all of her soundings into the depths of her cavalier's eligibility before she says yes. After she says yes the marriage may then safely take place within a week or a month. When our mothers were at the age of courtship far too many of them were influenced by their mothers to lead their fiances through a long priod of delusion during which they were wax images posing as pious angels and models of conventionality and fashion, such as took place in "Pride and Prejudice." Parents pinched their pocket books to bestow upon such engaged daughters clothes and social functions such as they never dreamed of before and for the benefit of their fiances they were influenced to put their best foot forward by practicing various trickeries and deceptions that resulted in sad disillusionment after marriage.

During the period of your engagement, be sincere and honest, revealing to your future husband what you are truly determined to be toward him because of your great love.

Other Readers' Questions Answered

Question: Is it ever correct for a gentleman to extend his hand to a lady or must she take this initiative?—Bertha.

Answer: It is the woman's privilege to extend her hand or refrain from so doing, as she chooses, when a man is introduced to her. However, if he happens to offer his hand, she must extend hers, too. To do otherwise would be very rude. Be safe and wait until she offers hers to you!

Question: I am very anxious to have a fur coat. It so happens that I am short—5 feet and somewhat plump—Do you think a fur coat would accentuate my stocky build?

Answer: Buy a coat of flat fur—such as seal, galyac, caracul, Persian lamb. The bulky furs—raccoon, beaver, etc., will detract from your height and add to your width. Leopard, although sleek, is of such a conspicuous design that it may tend to broaden your figure.

Mexican Deal Likened To Canadian Pact
Defense Bases Expected To Be Granted
State Department Reluctant In Matter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Whether or not Uncle Sam definitely has concluded an agreement with Mexico granting us naval and air bases in the neighboring republic's harbors and on its soil, it's about as certain as anything can be that the deal virtually is concluded.

Mexico City's story is that the bargain actually has been signed. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles says it hasn't been—not yet. Anyway, it's safe betting that the dicker's terms are mutually understood, even if formal signatures are lacking. Supposing that they are, there's every indication that they'll be affixed shortly.

It's to be remembered that the executive branch of our government has been considerably criticized lately for entering into what were described as amounting to international treaties without congress' approval, which constitutionally is required to validate them. Maybe that's why the state department's reluctant to admit that a compact with Mexico has been closed officially minus Capitol Hill's indorsement.

What the thing really is, according to exceptionally well posted authority, is an arrangement almost identical with our mutually defensive hook-up with Canada. That is to say, we and Canada are working on a bi-lateral basis. Now Mexico's coming into the alignment, making it tri-lateral.

Three-Way Combine

It isn't at all to the prejudice of the group's relationships with the Latin-American countries south of Mexico. They'll be more than welcome to join the Yankee-Canadian-Mexican partnership. However, we, the Canadians and the Mexicans geographically are an especially natural nucleus, covering the whole of North America. It's a three-cornered combination which ought to have plenty of appeal to the Central, South and insular Americas. That seems to have been the Washington, Ottawa and Mexico City governments' idea.

Well, we and the Canadians already are under the same mutually defensive roof. The certainty that Mexico's coming under it also appears to be pretty well established by President Roosevelt's assignment of Vice President-elect Wallace to be in Mexico City Dec. 1, the date of General Manuel Avila Camacho's inauguration as President Cardenas' successor. And that isn't all. It's learned now that incoming President Camacho will visit Washington in the near future.

Henry Wallace is mentioned as a particularly suitable individual to represent us at the Camacho inauguration because he speaks pretty good Spanish, which will flatter the Mexicans.

It's unfortunate that Henry didn't study Portuguese, too, while he was about it. Spanish is okay through all of Latin America except in Brazil. Portuguese is the Brazilians' lingo, and there is the biggest country south of the Rio Grande, the strongest and the most populous.

The truth is that there isn't much difference between the two tongues, but the Spanish-speakers pretend that they can't understand Portuguese and the Portuguese-speakers pretend that they can't understand Spanish. They're linguistically jealous of one another. To be sure a Mexican, for instance, can understand Portuguese or a Brazilian can understand Spanish if he sees a chance to make some money out of whatever proposition you put up to him. Illustratively, I know a little Spanish myself, and in Brazil I always was able to make known my simple wants, as for tobacco and alcohol because it was obvious that I had the cash to pay for 'em. But Henry Wallace, if he goes to Brazil, will find that his Spanish won't be of much use to him.

Henry though, isn't scheduled to visit Brazil at present, so his unfamiliarity with Portuguese won't matter.

Vargas To Visit U. S.

On the contrary, President Vargas of Brazil is due to be in Washington before long. That's part of the Pan-American program. The notion's to get the Brazilians under our Yankee-Canadian-Mexican roof likewise. For some inscrutable reason they like us "Yanquis" best of all Latin Americans. Most likely we'll get 'em. And Vargas, while here, won't expect us to speak much Portuguese.

Vargas, by the way, is a dictator. He denies that he's a totalitarian, but there's a general impression that he's Fascistical. I know this from an inside diplomatic source. Among sojourners in the United States is James I. Miller, a prominent Yankee news correspondent in Buenos Aires. He married a Brazilian woman, a distinguished authoress. She's not only a distinguished authoress, but also an outstanding Vargasite politically. And when she wanted a passport, to come here with her husband, she had a heck of a time getting it from our Argentine embassy, due to her supposedly Fascistical leanings.

We'll be delighted to greet Vargas himself, however; we need him for our Pan-American lineup.

The Great Game Of Politics

A Lack Of Unity Within

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22

THE phrase "national unity," like that other phrase "short of war," has been spoken and written so many times since the election that it is fast becoming hackneyed and meaningless. Already people are becoming bored by it, not because national unity is not desirable but because there is so much buncombe being put out in its name. Certainly the interpretations of the phrase by the two major political divisions are so widely separated as to suggest its impossibility.

FOR example, the New Dealers, supported by some of our more erudite publicists, are convinced that national unity means that the minority should accept the election result to the extent of abandoning all forms of Administration opposition at criticism. They point out that in these days every activity of the Government, and every policy of the White House is part of the defense program and there can be no national unity if any distinctions are made. The fact they try to drive home is that national defense is so overwhelmingly important that it absorbs everything else and nothing else matters.

THEREFORE, it is contended, to fall short of total support of the President; to fail to accept, for the time being at least, that the election returns proved him right and his opponents wrong; to criticize or oppose him in any way while the crisis continues, is to fail in patriotism. Unquestionably some who urge this view are sincere. They are convinced that while the battle of Britain still hangs in the balance there is neither time nor place for any other consideration. Every ounce of energy we have should be used in aiding England and building our defense machine.

THE other view is that, granting the vital necessity of those two things, still they will not be promoted by the complete and subservient acquiescence thus advocated. On the contrary, it is contended that that is the surest way in the world to increase incompetency, waste and delay. Also, it is losing our sense of proportion to become so absorbed by the war situation as to dismiss every domestic issue as too trivial to notice. That is carrying national unity to an unjustified extreme. For example, that would mean that the Administration's effort to force an adjournment of Congress, primarily in order to prevent passage of the Wagner-Logan bill and the NLRB amendments, would have to go uncriticized and unopposed. For a variety of reasons, that would not be in the national interests.

FOLLOWING out the argument of those who want to have the opposition abandon all opposition it would mean, among other things, that the Administration's plan to raise the debt limit $20,000,000,000 should not be resisted, as Senator Byrd is resisting it, and that the tax program of the Administration, if and when it is revealed, should be accepted without question because taxation is essentially a part of the national defense.

THE advocates of a total lack of criticism—those, for example, who want Mr. Willkie to go into the Administration and thus abandon the "loyal-opposition" idea which he has proclaimed—are either partisanly New Deal or they have not

GOOD AND BAD

The good cause waits and dallies
And dreams that all is well,
But a force the bad cause rallies
And it asks no resting spell
The friends of wrong are fervent,
They preach and plot and plan,
But good's most faithful servant
Does seldom all he can.

The friends of good are placid,
Peace-loving oft and proud.
Their zeal lacks fire and acrid
They seem to scorn the crowd
Their lists are filled with shirkers
Who sit at home and doze,
While most dynamic workers
The cause of good oppose.

What right needs (must I tell it?)
Is frenzy for the fray
And the fervor of the zealot
Which its enemies display
It could bridge the widest chasm
And achieve its utmost ends
With the same enthusiasm
Which an evil cause defends.

Hints On Etiquette

HUNGARY UNDER THE NAZI YOKE

HUNGARY'S formal induction into the German-Italian-Japanese alliance carries forward Hitler's program for a vast European and Asiatic coalition against Britain.

For some time Hungary had been regarded as wholly within the Nazi sphere of influence and as a "yes-yes" sychophant of the Reich. But there was always the possibility that it would continue to maintain at least the appearance of independence.

The ceremony in Vienna this week effectually removed that possibility and Hungary took on the yoke of Nazi domination, a yoke presumably soon to be humbly accepted, also, by Rumania, Bulgaria and Spain.

With Hitler's iron boot stamping down freedom in the Balkans, Jugoslavia's plight is obvious. The Jugoslavs deeply resent the Axis advance. No less do the Turks, who have indicated that they will fight if Bulgaria grants right of way for passage of Hitler's troops through its territory or if the Bulgars themselves make any move toward the Mediterranean.

But will the Turks be able to stand up for their convictions? Turkey is friendly with both Britain and Soviet Russia. But if Stalin, fearing to incur Hitler's wrath, puts pressure on the Turks to side with the Axis, it will be difficult for the Ankara government to resist the Nazi march toward the Near East and the Suez Canal.

Hitler's objective in this wide diplomatic drive may be to set up a fear-inspiring backdrop for new peace gestures toward Britain. Yet the threat of a widened and more furious war is inherent in the Fuehrer's far-flung activities.

It is a prospect in which only the courage of the British people and the striking-power of the British navy and air force offer hope.

AN AMERICAN IMMORTAL

Thirty-six years before the founding of the Hall of Fame at New York University a weary, poverty-stricken musician and song writer died at the age of thirty-eight, believing he was a failure.

Now Dr. Harry Chase, Chancellor of New York University and temporary director of the Hall of Fame, announces that Stephen Collins Foster was the only one of 141 nominated candidates to receive the required three-fifths vote of the 110 Americans who comprise the college of electors. This is the first time since the Hall was founded that only one nominee has been selected. Foster will be the first musician to take his place among America's immortals.

Although Stephen Foster's name is unfamiliar to many people, it is safe to say that everyone in America knows his songs. They more than immortalize the charm and melancholy of the vanished South. They are part of America's history and folk-lore. From Maine to Florida, from California to New York, the strains of "Old Black Joe," "O Susanna," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground,' and "My Old Kentucky Home' are familiar wherever groups of people gather to sing informally. And these songs are enthusiastically received from the concert stage.

The creator of this simple, moving music has received at last the fame denied him during his short life. His name was preferred to those of such distinguished men as Walter Reed, Sidney Lanier, Henry Thoreau and Booker T. Washington. It is a cold reward, perhaps, but the best that can be done at this late date for the memory of an American genius who, out of his own sadness and discouragement, created songs which have given pleasure to millions of Americans.

LET'S PROFIT BY EXPERIENCE

Sometimes the most hopeless of all tasks is discussing the strategy of the football game on the night after the contest is over. The same thing might be said, in effect, of the recent discussions in France of the reason why that brave country lost its unequal war against the Nazis. But such a discussion has its interest and value for us if we will seek to profit by the lessons of the blitzkreig in France and the causes leading up to it.

The Vichy government recently issued a statement which seeks in part at least to account for the French debacle. It is said that the French armies, when the situation became critical, were outnumbered in men, and were far inferior in the amount of fighting equipment. It is stated, for example, that Germany had 7,500 fighting tanks, to 2,000 for the French, while the Nazis had 5,000 airplanes to a pitiful number of 520 for the French. Small wonder then that the American correspondents with the advancing German armies reported that the skies were comparatively free of French airplanes.

The reason for this wide divergence in the amount of men and material is given as partially political and partly military. For instance, it is said that the socialistic French government had taught the people to believe that adequate national defense was not so important as plenty of leisure for everybody, with no thought of sacrifice for the common good. It is added that the French relied too much on the strength of the much-advertised Maginot Line and believed it would be a good substitute for tanks, airplanes and cannon.

Just how far the French were mistaken in both instances is now a matter of history. There is no use crying over spilled milk but the fact remains that we can draw a lesson for ourselves out of the unhappy experience of France. We are now engaged in a tremendous, if somewhat belated, defensive armament program. Our first duty is to complete such a program. But if we look upon it as a vehicle for restoring prosperity to the country, because the steel industry is booming, and believe that it will be completed without any sacrifice on the part of the people then we, too, will be grievously mistaken.

What we want therefore is rearmament for defense and the maintenance of peace. And we want, too, to be thinking about how we are going to make arrangements to pay for it.

Perhaps one reason Adolf Hitler hasn't been able to invade England is that the Trojan Horse can't swim the English channel.

The season soon will be here when mankind will remember that despite bombing planes the sky is still the home of the stars, moon, sun and Santa Claus.

When Ambassador Grew mentioned peace in a speech in Tokyo the other day, Emperor Hirohita nodded approvingly. Maybe the Mikado was sleepy.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

MUSIC AND ITS VALUE IN SCHOOLS

I am fifty-six years old. One Saturday afternoon, when I was a boy about twelve years old, I heard bagpipe music rendered by two traveling Scotchmen. It started up a few hundred yards away, on the hill in front of a neighbor's house.

Nothing I had ever heard sounded so wonderful to me. Excepting the harmonica, organ, and banjo, I had never heard a musical instrument. However, we did do some singing at home, church and school. A good many thousand other persons my age had no more exposure to instrumental music in their childhood, especially in rural places.

At the first teachers' institute I attended at the age of 16 when I began to teach, a hired string quartette played. Even in 1920 when I began lecturing at teachers' institute, the music was supplied from outside the schools. It was some years later before I heard an orchestra by school children at such meetings.

School Musicians

A year later when I lectured before the county teachers' institute of Franklin, county, Pa., which I first attended as a teacher 39 years before, excellent music was furnished by orchestras and choruses of school children. During the last 15 years the music supplied at conventions of teachers and parents in all the cities, counties and states where I have lectured has practically always been rendered by school children, and it has been of very high quality.

In Leesville, Crawford county, Ohio, is a good sample of a forward-looking music program by rural children, nearly all of whom live on farms. Out of the total enrollment of 248 children (69 grade children and 179 from grades 7 to 12 inclusive), 43 children of the grades and high school are in band and orchestra classes. The school band has 27 children; orchestra, 27; drum corps, 12; chorus, 30. Then there are various ensembles as string, woodwind, trios, vocal groups, which have appeared on many programs and have broadcast on the air.

Special Direction

As you might suppose, there is leadership in this place. Mr. H. L. Bland is the musical director. He is known nationally, being the author of the 30-minute series which include "Santa Claus," "Lincoln," "Washington," and "Pilgrims, each centered about music of the time indicated. These famous little operettas have been worked out by Mr. Bland with the aid of the rural school children of the Leesville area.

In these days of million-dollar stadia, used a few times a year, and bulging gate receipts at football games, it might be well to consider the character value of group music at school.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

MORE HOMES

Far from being bound and tongue-tied by doubts and uncertainty, great numbers of young people have found their worries and indecisions completely swept away by the deepening maelstrom in Europe and the conscription in this country.

The evidence just supplied by thirty-four of the nation's leading citizens indicates Dan Cupid has just been helping an unusual number of young men take positive action on the question, "To be, or not to be, wed." During August the number of marriage licenses issued in those cities was greater than in the preceding August by sixty-seven per cent.

And as goes the trend in marriage, so goes the trend in home-building, say housing experts. They report the conscription act had already set in motion a nation-wide boom in low-cost houses and small-rental apartments. The conscript debt moratorium, which became a law October 16, will scarcely discourage that drive.

Obviously, it is not just the defense industries which today are headed toward new records. That increasingly busy partnership between Dan Cupid and the nation's home builders show them bent on a boom of their own and doing quite well, thank you!

"How long should I remain engaged? I do not want to appear to my fiance to be in too great a hurry to drag him to the altar."—Serephina

There is nothing more destructive to the nervous systems of both a fiancee and her fiance than a long engagement. And nothing is more destructive to their love which wanes and cools during a long period of courtship. The wise girl makes all of her soundings into the depths of her cavalier's eligibility before she says yes. After she says yes the marriage may then safely take place within a week or a month. When our mothers were at the age of courtship far too many of them were influenced by their mothers to lead their fiances through a long priod of delusion during which they were wax images posing as pious angels and models of conventionality and fashion, such as took place in "Pride and Prejudice." Parents pinched their pocket books to bestow upon such engaged daughters clothes and social functions such as they never dreamed of before and for the benefit of their fiances they were influenced to put their best foot forward by practicing various trickeries and deceptions that resulted in sad disillusionment after marriage.

During the period of your engagement, be sincere and honest, revealing to your future husband what you are truly determined to be toward him because of your great love.

Other Readers' Questions Answered

Question: Is it ever correct for a gentleman to extend his hand to a lady or must she take this initiative?—Bertha.

Answer: It is the woman's privilege to extend her hand or refrain from so doing, as she chooses, when a man is introduced to her. However, if he happens to offer his hand, she must extend hers, too. To do otherwise would be very rude. Be safe and wait until she offers hers to you!

Question: I am very anxious to have a fur coat. It so happens that I am short—5 feet and somewhat plump—Do you think a fur coat would accentuate my stocky build?

Answer: Buy a coat of flat fur—such as seal, galyac, caracul, Persian lamb. The bulky furs—raccoon, beaver, etc., will detract from your height and add to your width. Leopard, although sleek, is of such a conspicuous design that it may tend to broaden your figure.

Mexican Deal Likened To Canadian Pact
Defense Bases Expected To Be Granted
State Department Reluctant In Matter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Whether or not Uncle Sam definitely has concluded an agreement with Mexico granting us naval and air bases in the neighboring republic's harbors and on its soil, it's about as certain as anything can be that the deal virtually is concluded.

Mexico City's story is that the bargain actually has been signed. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles says it hasn't been—not yet. Anyway, it's safe betting that the dicker's terms are mutually understood, even if formal signatures are lacking. Supposing that they are, there's every indication that they'll be affixed shortly.

It's to be remembered that the executive branch of our government has been considerably criticized lately for entering into what were described as amounting to international treaties without congress' approval, which constitutionally is required to validate them. Maybe that's why the state department's reluctant to admit that a compact with Mexico has been closed officially minus Capitol Hill's indorsement.

What the thing really is, according to exceptionally well posted authority, is an arrangement almost identical with our mutually defensive hook-up with Canada. That is to say, we and Canada are working on a bi-lateral basis. Now Mexico's coming into the alignment, making it tri-lateral.

Three-Way Combine

It isn't at all to the prejudice of the group's relationships with the Latin-American countries south of Mexico. They'll be more than welcome to join the Yankee-Canadian-Mexican partnership. However, we the Canadians and the Mexicans geographically are an especially natural nucleus, covering the whole of North America. It's a three-cornered combination which ought to have plenty of appeal to the Central, South and insular Americas. That seems to have been the Washington, Ottawa and Mexico City governments' idea.

Well, we and the Canadians already are under the same mutually defensive roof. The certainty that Mexico's coming under it also appears to be pretty well established by President Roosevelt's assignment of Vice President-elect Wallace to be in Mexico City Dec. 1 the date of General Manuel Avila Camacho's inauguration as President Cardenas' successor. And that isn't all. It's learned now that incoming President Camacho will visit Washington in the near future.

Henry Wallace is mentioned as a particularly suitable individual to represent us at the Camacho inauguration because he speaks pretty good Spanish, which will flatter the Mexicans.

It's unfortunate that Henry didn't study Portuguese, too, while he was about it. Spanish is okay through all of Latin America except in Brazil. Portuguese is the Brazilians' lingo, and theirs is the biggest country south of the Rio Grande, the strongest and the most populous.

The truth is that there isn't much difference between the two tongues but the Spanish-speakers pretend that they can't understand Portuguese and the Portuguese-speakers pretend that they can't understand Spanish. They're linguistically jealous of one another. To be sure a Mexican, for instance, can understand Portuguese or a Brazilian can understand Spanish if he sees a chance to make some money out of whatever proposition you put up to him. Illustratively, I know a little Spanish myself, and in Brazil I always was able to make known my simple wants, as for tobacco and alcohol, because it was obvious that I had the cash to pay for 'em. But Henry Wallace, if he goes to Brazil, will find that his Spanish won't be of much use to him.

Henry though isn't scheduled to visit Brazil at present, so his unfamiliarity with Portuguese won't matter.

Vargas To Visit U. S.

On the contrary, President Vargas of Brazil is due to be in Washington before long. That's part of the Pan-American program. The notion's to get the Brazilians under our Yankee-Canadian-Mexican roof likewise. For some inscrutable reason they like us "Yanquis" best of all Latin Americans. Most likely we'll get 'em. And Vargas, while here, won't expect us to speak much Portuguese.

Vargas, by the way, is a dictator. He denies that he's a totalitarian, but there's a general impression that he's Fascistical. I know this from an inside diplomatic source. Among sojourners in the United States is James I. Miller, a prominent Yankee news correspondent in Buenos Aires. He married a Brazilian woman, a distinguished authoress. She's not only a distinguished authoress, but also an outstanding Vargasite politically. And when she wanted a passport, to come here with her husband, she had a heck of a time getting it from our Argentine embassy, due to her supposedly Fascistical leanings.

We'll be delighted to greet Vargas himself, however; we need him for our Pan-American lineup.

A Lack Of Unity Within

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22

THE phrase "national unity," like that other phrase "short of war," has been spoken and written so many times since the election that it is fast becoming hackneyed and meaningless. Already people are becoming bored by it, not because national unity is not desirable but because there is so much buncombe being put out in its name. Certainly the interpretations of the phrase by the two major political divisions are so widely separated as to suggest its impossibility.

FOR example, the New Dealers, supported by some of our more erudite publicists, are convinced that national unity means that the minority should accept the election result to the extent of abandoning all forms of Administration opposition at criticism. They point out that in these days every activity of the Government and every policy of the White House is part of the defense program and there can be no national unity if any distinctions are made. The fact they try to drive home is that national defense is so overwhelmingly important that it absorbs everything else and nothing else matters.

THEREFORE, it is contended, to fall short of total support of the President; to fail to accept, for the time being at least, that the election returns proved him right and his opponents wrong; to criticize or oppose him in any way while the crisis continues, is to fail in patriotism. Unquestionably some who urge this view are sincere. They are convinced that while the battle of Britain still hangs in the balance there is neither time nor place for any other consideration. Every ounce of energy we have should be used in aiding England and building our defense machine.

THE other view is that, granting the vital necessity of those two things, still they will not be promoted by the complete and subservient acquiescence thus advocated. On the contrary, it is contended that that is the surest way in the world to increase incompetency, waste and delay. Also, it is losing our sense of proportion to become so absorbed by the war situation as to dismiss every domestic issue as too trivial to notice. That is carrying national unity to an unjustified extreme. For example, that would mean that the Administration's effort to force an adjournment of Congress, primarily in order to prevent passage of the Walters-Logan bill and the NLRB amendments, would have to go uncriticized and unopposed. For a variety of reasons, that would not be in the national interests.

FOLLOWING out the argument of those who want to have the opposition abandon all opposition it would mean, among other things, that the Administration's plan to raise the debt limit $20,000,000,000 should not be resisted, as Senator Byrd is resisting it, and that the tax program of the Administration, if and when it is revealed, should be accepted without question because taxation is essentially a part of the national defense.

THE advocates of a total lack of criticism—those, for example, who want Mr. Willkie to go into the Administration and thus abandon the "loyal-opposition" idea which he has proclaimed—are either partisanly New Deal or they have not

The good cause waits and dallies
And dreams that all is well,
But a force the bad cause rallies
And it asks no resting spell.
The friends of wrong are fervent,
They preach and plot and plan,
But good's most faithful servant
Does seldom all he can.

The friends of good are placid,
Peace-loving oft and proud.
Their zeal lacks fire and acid
They seem to scorn the crowd
Their lists are filled with shirkers
Who sit at home and doze,
While most dynamic workers
The cause of good oppose.

What right needs (must I tell it?)
Is frenzy for the fray
And the fervor of the zealot
Which its enemies display
It could bridge the widest chasm
And achieve its utmost ends
With the same enthusiasm
Which an evil cause defends.

Hints On Etiquette

thought things through. It would be better if they would concentrate their efforts for national unity inside the Administration rather than outside, because the fact is there is more friction within than there is criticism without. It not only is the continued failure of the President to name a chairman of the Defense commission, with power to coordinate, which continues to slow up the defense program but there is a distinct feud on between certain of the Presidential advisers and the businessmen who have been brought here to do the job.

AMONG the Presidential intimates there are two groups. One of these wants the present setup changed so that the businessmen shall act in an advisory and subordinate capacity and the contract-letting function be exercised by the army and navy heads. The other group wants a chairman of the Defense Commission named but are strongly opposed to any one of the businessmen now on the commission. They want a New Dealer to head the commission and have both the responsibility and authority. It is conceded that the businessmen are indispensable, that the program would bog down without them, and that they are making real sacrifices to serve their country.

NEVERTHELESS, the New Dealers are firm in their belief that building the defence machine should be an Administration job and the only way to make it that is to put an Administration man in charge. The decision, of course, rests with the President, and it is no easy decision to make. Whatever he decides will create some dissatisfaction. In the meantime a considerable degree of feeling has been engendered which is not helpful to the cause. It rather makes the efforts of the more articulate proponents of national unity seem misdirected.

thought things through. It would be better if they would concentrate their efforts for national unity inside the Administration rather than outside, because the fact is there is more friction within than there is criticism without. It not only is the continued failure of the President to name a chairman of the Defense commission, with power to coordinate, which continues to slow up the defense program but there is a distinct feud on between certain of the Presidential advisers and the businessmen who have been brought here to do the job.

AMONG the Presidential intimates there are two groups. One of these wants the present setup changed so that the businessmen shall act in an advisory and subordinate capacity and the contract-letting function be exercised by the army and navy heads. The other group wants a chairman of the Defense Commission named but are strongly opposed to any one of the businessmen now on the commission. They want a New Dealer to head the commission and have both the responsibility and authority. It is conceded that the businessmen are indispensable, that the program would bog down without them, and that they are making real sacrifices to serve their country.

NEVERTHELESS, the New Dealers are firm in their belief that building the defence machine should be an Administration job and the only way to make it that is to put an Administration man in charge. The decision, of course, rests with the President, and it is no easy decision to make. Whatever he decides will create some dissatisfaction. In the meantime a considerable degree of feeling has been engendered which is not helpful to the cause. It rather makes the efforts of the more articulate proponents of national unity seem misdirected.

TROOP 14

Girl Scouts of Troop 14 held their weekly meeting in the auditorium of St. Mary's church, with Marie Hanlon in charge.

Margaret Ritchford, Geraldine Fee and Honora Cunningham instructed the troop on how to play, "Around the Roses." The game "Indian," and "Thread Follows the Needle," were enjoyed later. Patrol corners were held, and the meeting closed with goodnight circle and taps.

Scribe, Edna Buckley.

Scribe, JoAnn Brown.

Methods become simpler. Mother bought an expensive outfit to burn scallop designs on the edge of wood; Daughter does it with cigaret butts.

Plan To Organize Service Corps In Boy Scout Circles

Group Of Older Boys Will Be Trained To Render Emergency Service

Plans are being worked out by the Lawrence County Boy Scouts Council for the organization of an Emergency Service Corps in the New Castle District. The corps will be similar to the one that has been functioning so successfully in Ellwood City for the past two years.

Purpose of the organization is to train a group of older scouts and prepare them for emergency service at a moment's notice. Duties of such a corps would be along the lines of saving lives, delivering Thanksgiving baskets, directing traffic, hunting for lost children, and in general aiding the city and state police and other officials when needed.

According to Scout Executive John J. Finnessy, the scouting program is designed specifically to make better citizens of ordinary boys and this is accomplished through the continual practice of the scout motto, "Be Prepared".

Those persons who are interested in the organization of an Emergency Service Corps here, plan to hold a meeting soon, at which time the selection of boys for the group will be discussed, Mr. Finnessy stated today.

Tossed by Bomb

Mrs. Ann Haltrecht, wife of a sapper in England's Royal Engineers, reaches the safety of New York with her 14-months-old son, Courtland. During a Nazi raid on London, a bomb crashed through the roof of their home, through the cot in which Courtland was sleeping and into the basement, where it exploded. The boy was tossed high into the air by the blast, but was caught by his mother, who hurried from the collapsing house. (Central Press)

Hunting Season Toll Is Smaller

Safety Campaign Brings Results According To Game Commission Head

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22. — The death and accident toll among hunters is smaller this fall due to a safety campaign in which newspapers played a major role, Seth Gordon, executive director of the state game commission, said today.

"The fact there are fewer hunters in the field, coupled with the safety drive staged by the commission with the help of the newspapers, brought a decline in gunning casualties," he said.

With the small game season at the half-way mark, the kill to date was less than last year's bag, added Gordon. Fewer turkeys were killed as compared with other years.

"It has been a difficult year for the hunter because damp weather and lack of killing frosts in the central counties has prolonged the growth of vegetation," Gordon explained. "The birds are hard to flush, and that puts the hunter at a disadvantage."

Group Of Older Boys Will Be Trained To Render Emergency Service

Plans are being worked out by the Lawrence County Boy Scouts Council for the organization of an Emergency Service Corps in the New Castle District. The corps will be similar to the one that has been functioning so successfully in Ellwood City for the past two years.

Purpose of the organization is to train a group of older scouts and prepare them for emergency service at a moment's notice. Duties of such a corps would be along the lines of saving lives, delivering Thanksgiving baskets, directing traffic, hunting for lost children, and in general aiding the city and state police and other officials when needed.

According to Scout Executive John J. Finnessy, the scouting program is designed specifically to make better citizens of ordinary boys and this is accomplished through the continual practice of the scout motto, "Be Prepared".

Those persons who are interested in the organization of an Emergency Service Corps here, plan to hold a meeting soon, at which time the selection of boys for the group will be discussed, Mr. Finnessy stated today.

Tossed by Bomb

Mrs. Ann Haltrecht, wife of a sapper in England's Royal Engineers, reaches the safety of New York with her 14-months-old son, Courtland. During a Nazi raid on London, a bomb crashed through the roof of their home, through the cot in which Courtland was sleeping and into the basement, where it exploded. The boy was tossed high into the air by the blast, but was caught by his mother, who hurried from the collapsing house.

Hunting Season Toll Is Smaller

Safety Campaign Brings Results According To Game Commission Head

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22. — The death and accident toll among hunters is smaller this fall due to a safety campaign in which newspapers played a major role, Seth Gordon, executive director of the state game commission, said today.

"The fact there are fewer hunters in the field, coupled with the safety drive staged by the commission with the help of the newspapers, brought a decline in gunning casualties," he said.

With the small game season at the half-way mark, the kill to date was less than last year's bag, added Gordon. Fewer turkeys were killed as compared with other years.

"It has been a difficult year for the hunter because damp weather and lack of killing frosts in the central counties has prolonged the growth of vegetation," Gordon explained. "The birds are hard to flush, and that puts the hunter at a disadvantage."

Britain Urged To Form Corps Of Chiropodists

(International News Service)

LONDON—The British armed forces shortly will have as much care taken of their feet as their stomach, if a plan put up by the Joint Council of Chiropodists is carried out.

The Council wants a new army corps formed, to be called the Royal Corps of Chiropodists.

Representing thousands of qualified men all over the country, the Chiropodists Council says that the Army's feet should be cared for by experts and not by "spare-time corn cutters" from the ranks.

In a letter to the War Office they suggest that the new Corps, if formed, should work in co-operation with the Royal Army Medical Corps.

No reply has been received from the the War Office, nor have they accepted the suggestion for a national register of expert chiropodists who are willing to serve with the colors.

OLD SWISS METHOD STILL USED HERE TO MAKE CHEESE

(International News Service)

BERNE, Ind.—No single art or tradition brought to this community by immigrants from Switzerland has been preserved more carefully than that of making Swiss cheese.

The method, handed from one generation to the next in this Swiss community, is the same as that used for centuries on the mountain sides across the sea.

The famous Berne cheese factories of several years ago have disappeared before the coming of modern methods in cheese making and the increase in other demands for milk, but the industry now is carried on by the older families in the community.

Chris J. Schwartz is the leading exponent of the art, having made a cheese every day for more than 35 years. Schwartz, who is in his early sixties, turns all the milk from his 12 cows into one 25 pound cheese every morning, according to the method taught him by his mother, a native of Switzerland.

Special Instruction In Highway Safety Is Being Planned

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22.—Preliminary plans for special instruction of school children in street and highway safety are being developed by the inter-departmental committee on safety education, Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction, reported.

The purpose of the committee action is to stimulate a consciousness on the part of children to various hazards met in going to and from school. At the next meeting of the committee, scheduled for December 10, an outline for special instruction will be submitted by a subcommittee representing a cross-section of the elementary school organization. It is proposed that the outline, when approved, will be placed in the hands of elementary school teachers throughout the state as a step toward reduction of street and highway accidents involving pedestrians.

The committee, working under the direction of Dr. Henry Klonower of the department of public instruction, is composed of three representatives of the Harrisburg schools. It is also considering various other phases of a state-wide safety education program, including the safe transportation of pupils and community surveys to determine the safest routes.

It has been found that in New York or London leprosy is not contagious, but it is in California.

Eliminates Sabres In Army Equipment

Special Instruction In Highway Safety Is Being Planned

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22.—Preliminary plans for special instruction of school children in street and highway safety are being developed by the inter-departmental committee on safety education, Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction, reported.

The purpose of the committee action is to stimulate a consciousness on the part of children to various hazards met in going to and from school. At the next meeting of the committee, scheduled for December 10, an outline for special instruction will be submitted by a subcommittee representing a cross-section of the elementary school organization. It is proposed that the outline, when approved, will be placed in the hands of elementary school teachers throughout the state as a step toward reduction of street and highway accidents involving pedestrians.

The committee, working under the direction of Dr. Henry Klonower of the department of public instruction, is composed of three representatives of the Harrisburg schools. It is also considering various other phases of a state-wide safety education program, including the safe transportation of pupils and community surveys to determine the safest routes.

It has been found that in New York or London leprosy is not contagious, but it is in California.

Eliminates Sabres In Army Equipment

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Nov. 22—The sabre has been officially eliminated from officers' equipment in the United States Army it was announced here today at headquarters of the 112th Regiment.

A bulletin ordering elimination of the sabre stressed that mechanized warfare makes hand-to-hand fighting a rarity and claimed that under modern conditions the sabre is for appearance only. The statement said, in part:

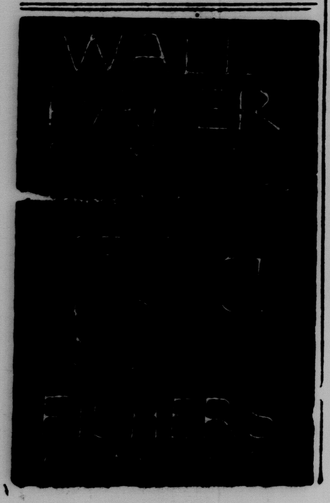

"In parades the sabre is colorful, but frequently is the cause of confusion when it stick in the scabbard."

If the hornets whose nest is in the eaves of your home are not molesting any members of the family, they should be left alone, as they are valuable in destroying injurious garden insect pests.

Huge Christmas Trade Is Forecast

By ROGER W. BABSON
Copyright—1940—Publishers Financial Bureau

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 22.—Christmas trade during the coming holiday season should be the best in many years. Business volume on my Babsonchart is estimated at 118 for November. This is approximately six points higher than for November of last year. Moreover, all factors point to a stepping-up of business activity between now and Christmas. The rate of rise in retail spending will be sharper both prior to Christmas and in the closing weeks of 1940 than was the case a year ago.

BABSON

The bitter election campaigns are being forgotten. The war is still 3,000 miles away. People are determined in spite of future uncertainties to have a good Christmas. Last year my optimism for a holiday rush—and it came—was based mainly on figures rather than on hopes. This year I base my conclusions upon figures, but in addition upon the feelings and the spirit of 120,000,000 people.

Lid Coming Off Business

Armament payrolls are being felt in the heavy industry states. Cantonment construction is likewise providing new and larger payrolls. Activity in this field will certainly continue through and beyond the year-end. Retailers will benefit greatly from the wage spending embraced in these and other groups. The slack in unemployment is being taken up. Farm income continues to rise. Federal payrolls, including the armed services, are higher. Money in circulation is increasing. Millions of more dollars are available for retail purchases this Christmas than last year.

Thousands of individuals are getting back to work again. Their pay envelopes will buy more turkeys and other food, more clothes and other necessities. Higher stock prices and increased dividends will result in the purchase this holiday season of more goods in the luxury group. Steel, automobile assemblies, machine tool, electric output, and other industries are making new highs in production. The pressure in the business kettle is ready to lift the lid in a big way. Fear of money inflation, as distinguished from the credit inflation will tend to push more funds into tangible goods this season than last.

Merchants Should Increase Advertising

Not for years has the buying psychology of the consuming public been so favorable. The unprecedented peace-time defense program gives the green light "go ahead" signal to retailers and purchasers alike. We are now in a sellers' market. The magnificient defense of Britain, plus the tonic effects of the domestic recovery, is transforming buyers. A greater feeling of well-being and security exists in the minds of the rank and file of our people who constitute the buying public.

Merchants face a golden opportunity this season to capitalize and to cash in on this change of buyers' heart. At times during the past months of the year large-scale advertising was not perhaps justified on the part of retail merchants. Now, however, they will be making a great mistake if they do not use more space to adequately describe for the consuming public the goods they have to sell. Moreover, such advertising should start immediately and increase in volume during the few remaining weeks of the year.

A Word To Shoppers

Wall Street should be busier these next few weeks than it was a year ago; but Main Street certainly will be busier. Smart buyers will start shopping today. Restaurants, busses, street cars, taxis, sidewalks and stores will be jammed as the holiday trade approaches its climax. Retailers are not over-stocked this year. This is another reason for shopping early. Do not shop too late because by doing so you may rob yourself of a good selection of merchandise.

From a price standpoint this current Christmas season is a good time to buy. Do not confine this year's purchases to small gifts for the family and friends. Take advantage of existing prices to acquire new furniture, an ice box, a piano, or radio. Trade in your old car. Buy the clothes, furs, and jewelry you you have been thinking about. The trend of prices, in spite of possible governmental checks, is upward. If the war continues and our own country becomes further involved, many articles of common use may be restricted in manufacture due to priority classifications.

No Blackouts Here

War and fear of war stalks the city streets of every other country in the world today. We are fortunate that, here in American, we can once more freely enter into the spirit of the holiday season. For us the window displays of our shops will be as brilliantly lighted as in past years. We have much to be thankful for. In being thankful let us, in our buying, think of the needs of others. Let us remember our own families, but at the same time make purchases for less fortunate families or individuals. "We grow only as we give" is as true today as it was 2000 years ago.

New Castle Man Burned By Blast At Freedom Works

David Balo, 114 West Cherry Street Among Those Burned As Truck Explodes

(International News Service)

FREEDOM, Pa., Nov. 22.—Police today planned to continue their investigation into an oil tank-truck explosion at the Freedom Oil Company works in which three men were burned, two seriously, by a shower of hot oil.

Those injured were David Balo, 114 West Cherry street, New Castle; Thomas B. Lowe, 56, Negro, Rochester; and William Reiser, of Freedom.

The explosion, Police Chief J. W. McWilliams theorized, probably occurred because the newly-filled tank had been capped too tightly, making it impossible for gasses formed by the oil to escape. He added, however, that he would continue the investigation today.

Balo and Lowe were badly burned about the face and body and were taken to a hospital at Rochester. Reiser escaped with superficial burns.

A fire started immediately after the explosion, but was quickly extinguished by plant employes.

There is a species of insect which is known as the "railway beetle," because it flashes a red light at the ends of its body and a green light along the sides.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GASTRO-ENTERITIS

A few weeks ago the newspapers carried a small item about an outbreak of gastro-enteritis among children in a small city near mine. Since then a number of mothers have addressed inquiries to me about this disease with the serious sounding name. And I have told them that gastro-enteritis means sick stomach.

The symptoms of this condition are nausea, vomiting, coated tongue, thirst, foul breath, aversion to food, sometimes a pain in the stomach. The common cause is some one irritating or indigestible food; sometimes, it is a combination of foods that won't digest together. Food that is too cold or too hot may cause it, and very often it may be a symptom of the onset of some infectious disease, because many of these show an upset stomach as the first symptom. A baby may suffer from gastro-enteritis because the milk is too rich, or because it has eaten too much, or it is suffering from the heat, or has a sudden change in diet.

The first thing to do, usually, is empty the stomach—get rid of whatever is upsetting that organ. Drinking quantities of warm water and then pressing the finger down the throat is an unpleasant, but thorough, way of accomplishing this. Bicarbonate of soda is good; so is an enema.

Swallowing bits of ice often serves to settle the stomach and at the same time it relieves the thirst that is always present.

This I always try to impress on people about sick stomach, or gastro-enteritis: nine cases out of ten will be trivial, and simple to relieve. But the tenth time, the sick stomach is a symptom of serious trouble. If you treat the matter too lightly and don't call your doctor, then a serious condition may develop until other symptoms and the increasing illness of the patient, force you to call a doctor. By that time, however, whatever the disease is will have gained dangerous headway. It is always better to be safe than sorry and I strongly advise your calling a doctor when a child or an adult has a badly upset stomach.

One of the most serious possibilities in the case of sick stomach is appendicitis. If you don't call your doctor, this may continue to act like a sick stomach until the appendix gets so bad it ruptures. When this happens, there is a very great danger that the patient will die.

Then too, the gastro-enteritis may merely be the first signal that some acute infectious disease is beginning. The doctor, if he is called, will recognize what is happening and will treat the patient so as to minimize the attack. But if he isn't called until the disease is running full tilt through the patient's system, it is too late for him to keep the disease in a mild form.

Conference In Washington Today May Result In Action On Project

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22—Walter A. Jones, Turnpike commission member and former chairman will meet today at Washington with Jesse Jones, administrator of the reconstruction finance corporation and U. S. secretary of commerce, in an effort to obtain federal support for construction of the Pennsylvania Turnpike extension. It will be the third conference between the two within a week.

There were intimations that an important announcement might be expected within the next few days on the financing problems connected with the construction of the 100-mile link between Harrisburg and Philadelphia. About $60,000,000 is needed. Added support was given this belief with the disclosure that members of the Turnpike publicity staff were directed to meet with Walter Jones in Washington tomorrow.

The 1940 session of the legislature authorized the construction last May of a Turnpike extension prolonging the Pittsburgh to Harrisburg superhighway across the state, but to date, no work has been done. Walter Jones has recently recovered from a lengthy illness.

The RFC purchased $40,800,000 of the bonds issued by the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission for the construction of the Pittsburgh to Harrisburg superhighway which was opened to traffic on October 1.

SPECIAL CARE NEEDED BY SAPPY SEED CORN

On account of the poor season for maturing corn, much of it still carries a high percentage of moisture.

If this corn goes through a hard freeze in its present condition, germination will be seriously injured. Unusual care is needed to insure rapid drying, or the seed protected from early freezes.

In order to dry seed corn quickly, the freest possible circulation of air is needed around each ear. Hanging corn on racks or putting it up with twine where the wind can blow over it will dry it out much more rapidly than crib storage. Artificial heat will, of course, help if accompanied by good air circulation; otherwise, heat simply promotes the development of mold.

When a hard freeze is expected before corn has time to dry, the ears selected for seed should be stored indoors where temperatures will not fall to the danger point.

Crib corn also needs all possible air circulation this fall or much of it may mold and spoil. Cribhouse doors should be kept open, especially on windy, drying days. Silk and husks in the crib retard circulation of air. Decidedly soft ears should be sorted out in filling the crib and fed at once or stored where they will not spoil the corn around them.

Where a barn or loft floors are available, sappy corn will dry better spread out there than piled into cribs already partly filled. Pieces of old lumber set crosswise in cribs may prevent the corn from settling into a solid mass and thus will promote air circulation and drying. An A-shaped ventilating flue through the bottom of wide cribs will admit more air and often prevent spoilage.

CLUB MEMBERS TO SHOW STOCK AT PITTSBURGH

Western Pennsylvania 4-H club members will exhibit baby beeves and lambs at the eighth annual Pittsburgh livestock show and sale, December 9 to 11.

Counties expected to enter baby beeves are Butler, 5 animals; Fayette, 15; and Mercer, 12. In the class for pens of three fat lambs each, the following entries are expected: Mercer 8; Indiana, 6; Jefferson, 20; Lawrence 12; and Washington, 30.

Changes in the rules and regulations made this year at the suggestion of club leaders include: (1) showing steers by breed and weight classes and then for breed champions and grand and reserve grand champion of the show; (2) dividing premium money according to the number of entries in each class; (3) all junior show entries must be shown by the owners, which means that adults cannot show for junior exhibitors.

EQUIPMENT IMPORTANT IN FEEDING POULTRY

Feed hoppers influence the amount of feed consumed by the laying flock and also the profit made by the birds. The type of feed hopper, the height from the floor, and the amount of hopper space all play a part. Often the feeding equipment used may be conductive to heavy consumption of feed.

Many poultrymen, especially those who have the heavier breeds, prefer feeders that they can set close to the floor. The equipment rests on the litter and the fowls may stand on the litter to eat. Enough height to prevent litter being scattered into the feeder may be provided by short legs on blocks under the hopper. In some cases, a low approach to the feeder for the fowl to stand on may be required. With these two types of equipment, danger of fowls standing on the floor picking other birds feeding from perches is reduced.

Sometimes reels are placed in such a way as to discourage birds with large combs and wattles from eating because of injury or shock to these head parts caused by continuous bumping. This is particularly true of males in breeding pens. With some types of equipment, there is too little space between the wires of the hinged grid placed over the feed box. These openings may be made larger.

When breeding males get thin, it may be due to some difficulty as described. Supplying additional mash and grain in open troughs placed along the wall will help keep these birds in better flesh.

These feeders must be placed high enough so that the females cannot reach them while the males can. If desired, open hoppe space advantageous to the males can be made available to the whole flock.

WINTER-FRESHENING COWS OFTEN NEED SPECIAL CARE

Cows which are to freshen during early winter often become thin in the fall. Late fall pasture may look good but because of lack of nutrients or because the cows do not eat so much grass in the fall as in the summer they seem to lose flesh more readily.

The dry period and the fitting of these cows for freshening are doubly important. Allowing the cows to stand dry for eight weeks and giving them enough feed to put them in good flesh by freshening time is recommended.

Any good fitting ration may be used or one can be mixed by using 100 pounds each of ground corn, ground oats, and wheat bran and 50 pounds of soybean oil meal. Salt may be added at the rate of 1 pound to 100 pounds of feed. If the hay is not of good quality, increase the soybean oilmeal to 75 pounds and steamed bone meal may be added at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds per 100 pounds of feed.

Four to six pounds of the grain mixture twice a day should be enough. About two weeks before freshening, it is advisable to remove the ground corn and add a little oats. A day or two before freshening, remove the grain entirely and feed 4 quarts of wheat bran per feed.

While it is best to limit the corn silage to 15 pounds a day, a cow may have all the hay she can eat. Some dairymen have found it beneficial not to feed corn silage at all during the last four weeks of the dry period to cows of high production or to cows that have a tendency to caked udders at freshening time. When corn silage is removed from the ration in the latter part of the dry period, roots of wet beet pulp should be fed in its place.

The fitting of a cow for milk production, is just as important as preparing a field for a crop. If a cow freshens thin, it is impossible for that cow to produce as much milk as she should, owing to the drain of nutrients from her system.

FOUR SHORT COURSES TO BE GIVEN AT PENN STATE

Four short courses will be given at the Pennsylvania State College this winter. Two of these, animal husbandry and dairy farming, will run from January 8 to February 5. The general agriculture course will start February 5 and end March 5. The dairy manufacturing course, which really is three courses of two weeks each, will begin January 6 and continue until February 15.

ROAST TURKEY IN OPEN PAN FOR BEST RESULTS

It can no longer be said that turkey makes its appearance on the family table only once or twice a year, but it cannot be denied that this royal bird still remains the favorite for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Not all homemakers can take the pick of their flock but must depend on market birds. There will be a supply of good quality birds available from local flocks. Also, for those who desire government graded poultry, various markets will supply them, says Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence County.

The best turkeys are graded U. S. Prime, and are the highest in price. Next in line is the U. S. choice followed by the U. S. Commercial.

When buying a turkey, make a note of its dressed weight, that is, the weight of the bird before it is drawn with the feathers removed but the head and feet still on. This dressed weight is the guide to the time and temperature for roasting.

When it comes to roasting the bird, Miss Lucy Alexander, poultry cooking specialist, with the Federal bureau of home economics, has some helpful suggestions. She urges homemakers to always roast a young turkey in an uncovered pan at moderate heat. The exact temperature of the oven depends on the size of the turkey.

The roasting pan may be any shallow pan that is large enough to hold the turkey. It does not need a cover, but should have a rack in the bottom to keep the bird from sticking. A rack also allows the hot air of the oven to circulate under the bird.

Stuff the turkey and sew up the openings, she continues. Then put the bird on the rack with the breast down and the back up. If you roast the turkey with the back up most of the time, the breast will get done without cooking the meat off the end of the breastbone.

Do not put any water in the roasting pan. Water will only steam the meat instead of roasting it. Turning the turkey and basting it with pan drippings or melted fat is an important part of roasting the bird.

Miss Alexander's method for roasting turkey is given in detail in a leaflet "Poultry Cooking." You can get a free copy by sending a post card to the U. S. department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SPECIAL CARE NEEDED BY SAPPY SEED CORN

On account of the poor season for maturing corn, much of it still carries a high percentage of moisture.

If this corn goes through a hard freeze in its present condition, germination will be seriously injured. Unusual care is needed to insure rapid drying, or the seed protected from early freezes.

In order to dry seed corn quickly, the freest possible circulation of air is needed around each ear. Hanging corn on racks or putting it up with twine where the wind can blow over it will dry it out much more rapidly than crib storage. Artificial heat will, of course, help if accompanied by good air circulation; otherwise, heat simply promotes the development of mold.

When a hard freeze is expected before corn has time to dry, the ears selected for seed should be stored indoors where temperatures will not fall to the danger point.

Crib corn also needs all possible air circulation this fall or much of it may mold and spoil. Cribhouse doors should be kept open, especially on windy, drying days. Silk and husks in the crib retard circulation of air. Decidedly soft ears should be sorted out in filling the crib and fed at once or stored where they will not spoil the corn around them.

Where a barn or loft floors are available, sappy corn will dry better spread out there than piled into cribs already partly filled. Pieces of old lumber set crosswise in crios may prevent the corn from settling into a solid mass and thus will promote air circulation and drying. An A-shaped ventilating flue through the bottom of wide cribs will admit more air and often prevent spoilage.

CLUB MEMBERS TO SHOW STOCK AT PITTSBURGH

Western Pennsylvania 4-H club members will exhibit baby beeves and lambs at the eighth annual Pittsburgh livestock show and sale, December 9 to 11.

Counties expected to enter baby beeves are Butler, 5 animals; Fayette, 15; and Mercer, 12. In the class for pens of three fat lambs each, the following entries are expected: Mercer 8; Indiana, 6; Jefferson, 20; Lawrence 12; and Washington, 30.

Changes in the rules and regulations made this year at the suggestion of club leaders include: (1) showing steers by breed and weight classes and then for breed champions and grand and reserve grand champion of the show; (2) dividing premium money according to the number of entries in each class; (3) all junior show entries must be shown by the owners, which means that adults cannot show for junior exhibitors.

EQUIPMENT IMPORTANT IN FEEDING POULTRY

Feed hoppers influence the amount of feed consumed by the laying flock and also the profit made by the birds. The type of feed hopper, the height from the floor, and the amount of hopper space all play a part. Often the feeding equipment used may be conductive to heavy consumption of feed.

Many poultrymen, especially those who have the heavier breeds, prefer feeders that they can set close to the floor. The equipment rests on the litter and the fowls may stand on the litter to eat. With these two types of equipment, danger of fowls standing on the floor picking other birds feeding from perches is reduced.

Sometimes reels are placed in such a way as to discourage birds with large combs and wattles from eating because of injury or shock to these head parts caused by continuous bumping. This is particularly true of males in breeding pens. With some types of equipment, there is too little space between the wires of the hinged grid placed over the feed box. WINTER-FRESHENING COWS OFTEN NEED SPECIAL CARE

Cows which are to freshen during early winter often become thin in the fall. Late fall pasture may look good but because of lack of nutrients or because the cows do not eat so much grass in the fall as in the summer they seem to lose flesh more readily.

Any good fitting ration may be used or one can be mixed by using 100 pounds each of ground corn, ground oats, and wheat bran and 50 pounds of soybean oil meal. Salt may be added at the rate of 1 pound to 100 pounds of feed. If the hay is not of good quality, increase the soybean oilmeal to 75 pounds and steamed bone meal may be added at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds per 100 pounds of feed.

Four to six pounds of the grain mixture twice a day should be enough. About two weeks before freshening, it is advisable to remove the ground corn and add a little oats. A day or two before freshening, remove the grain entirely and feed 4 quarts of wheat bran per feed.

While it is best to limit the corn silage to 15 pounds a day, a cow may have all the hay she can eat. Some dairymen have found it beneficial not to feed corn silage at all during the last four weeks of the dry period to cows of high production or to cows that have a tendency to caked udders at freshening time. When corn silage is removed from the ration in the latter part of the dry period, roots of wet beet pulp should be fed in its place.

The fitting of a cow for milk production, is just as important as preparing a field for a crop. If a cow freshens thin, it is impossible for that cow to produce as much milk as she should, owing to the drain of nutrients from her system.

FOUR SHORT COURSES TO BE GIVEN AT PENN STATE

Four short courses will be given at the Pennsylvania State College this winter. Two of these, animal husbandry and dairy farming, will run from January 8 to February 5. The general agriculture course will start February 5 and end March 5. The dairy manufacturing course, which really is three courses of two weeks each, will begin January 6 and continue until February 15.

Sino-Japanese War Nears Its Fourth Winter

Chinese Assume Offensive Warning Japan That Hostilities Will Continue

ENEMY LINES ARE PENETRATED

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PEKING, China, Nov. 22—Cutting three of North China's trunk railways, Chinese troops served notice on the Japanese army of occupation that the fourth winter of Sino-Japanese hostilities will not be as quiet as the Japanese had predicted.

Despite major drives against the Chinese divisions in Shansi Province conducted by the Japanese last summer, the spokesman of the Imperial Army in Peking ruefully admitted that the latest check-up on Chinese armed regulars in that province indicated that there are as many Chinese soldiers in Shansi today as there were one year ago.

The Japanese claimed to have killed thousands of Chinese during the summer fighting. Thus their admission can only mean that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has successfully sent fresh forces across the Yellow River into Shansi, a province which the Japanese overran just three years ago for the first time. Since then, it has been a continuous battlefield with heavy losses on both sides.

Penetrate Japanese Lines

In addition to damaging bridges on the Peking-Hankow and Shihchiachwang-Taiyuanfu Railways, armed Chinese managed to penetrate Japanese lines on the important Peking-Mukden Railway, main link between North China and Japan, and remove rails in face of closest Japanese military watchfulness.

While none of these breaks held up traffic for more than a few days, nevertheless it was disquieting to the Japanese army and had a heartening effect upon the Chinese civil population in occupied North China. Likewise it gave the lie to Japanese-sponsored Chinese regimes that all was peaceful and that the war against Japan was both useless and finished.

A Japanese press ban recently lifted revealed that one hundred Chinese, alleged members of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Blue Shirts, had been arrested for terroristic activities behind the Japanese lines in North China.

Twenty-one of this number were executed by the Japanese, including the leaders, young men ranging from twenty five to thirty five years of age. Others were given long prison terms.

Used Radio Sets

According to the Japanese these patriots kept in touch with the Chungking government by means of three radio sets located right in Peking not far from a Japanese barracks. As spies, provocateurs and plotters for the assassination of high ranking Japanese military officers and Chinese heads of the North China Political Commission, the executed Blue Shirts must have done an excellent job to warrant the drastic Japanese punishment.

Would Make Strikes In National Defense An Act Of Treason

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—Rep. E. E. Cox (D) Ga., today urged congress to pass legislation making strikes in national defense industry "treason" to the government.

President Thomas Jefferson was a violinist of some skill, playing for "sympathetic listeners" in his home, accompanied by his elder daughter on the harpsichord.

ACCENTS MINGLE AT DARTMOUTH SPEECH CLINIC

(International News Service)

HANOVER, N. H.—Foreign accents mingle with southern drawls, New England twang, broad "A's" from the Boston area, and flat dialects from the middle west, as students of Dartmouth attend the College Speech Clinic to eliminate speech defects.

As part of the program every Dartmouth undergraduate has his voice and enunciation tested. Reading tests are compulsory for entering freshmen each fall, while recordings are made of all students taking public speaking courses. By means of these tests and recordings, Carl D. England, director of the clinic, is able to single out individual students who need help.

STOLEN BRIDGE FOUND IN JUNK DEALER'S SHOP

(International News Service)

MARION, Ill.—Nobody can steal a bridge from County Highway Engineer Charles Sheretz and get away with it! It took the engineer just ten days to find the stolen Fisher bridge and get it back home.

The highway engineer discovered that the bridge was missing from the spot where it had been left along a Williamson County road when the highway department decided it wouldn't be needed any longer to span Crab Orchard creek.

Beginning at the south end of the state by canvassing junk dealers at Cairo, Ill., and working his way north, Sheretz finally reached St. Louis where he found the bridge. All but five of the thirty-one 30-foot steel beams that had made up the span were in the possession of a St. Louis junk dealer.

STOLEN BRIDGE FOUND IN JUNK DEALER'S SHOP

(International News Service)

MARION, Ill.—Nobody can steal a bridge from County Highway Engineer Charles Sheretz and get away with it! It took the engineer just ten days to find the stolen Fisher bridge and get it back home.

The highway engineer discovered that the bridge was missing from the spot where it had been left along a Williamson County road when the highway department decided it wouldn't be needed any longer to span Crab Orchard creek.

Beginning at the south end of the state by canvassing junk dealers at Cairo, Ill., and working his way north, Sheretz finally reached St. Louis where he found the bridge. All but five of the thirty-one 30-foot steel beams that had made up the span were in the possession of a St. Louis junk dealer.

Co-eds Go To School For Education Or Husband?

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Nov. 22.—"Do co-eds come to college to get an education...or a husband?" was the subject debated this week by Westminster college freshman and sophomore debaters.

The sophomore team, debating on the affirmative side, that co-eds do come to college to get a husband rather than an education, pointed out that co-eds have from four to five times as many collegians' pictures on the walls of their rooms than do college men, and that the college Date Bureau, sponsored by the Student Council, has three times as many co-eds as collegians enrolled.

Freshman debaters, attempting to make out a case for co-eds coming to college to get an education rather than a husband, offered as proof the fact that only five out of 50 co-eds in the 1938 class have married since their graduation.

The sophomore debaters tried to make a strong point out of the fact that co-eds in co-educational colleges use much more makeup and wear more appealing clothes than do their sisters in "girls' schools".

Debaters were Dee Hoffman, Turtle Creek, and Merritt Reynolds, New Castle, freshmen; and Elizabeth Shear, Pittsburgh, and Chalmers Houston, Ben Avon.

Co-eds Go To School For Education Or Husband?

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Nov. 22.—"Do co-eds come to college to get an education...or a husband?" was the subject debated this week by Westminster college freshman and sophomore debaters.

The sophomore team, debating on the affirmative side, that co-eds do come to college to get a husband rather than an education, pointed out that co-eds have from four to five times as many collegians' pictures on the walls of their rooms than do college men, and that the college Date Bureau, sponsored by the Student Council, has three times as many co-eds as collegians enrolled.

Freshman debaters, attempting to make out a case for co-eds coming to college to get an education rather than a husband, offered as proof the fact that only five out of 50 co-eds in the 1938 class have married since their graduation.

The sophomore debaters tried to make a strong point out of the fact that co-eds in co-educational colleges use much more makeup and wear more appealing clothes than do their sisters in "girls' schools".

Debaters were Dee Hoffman, Turtle Creek, and Merritt Reynolds, New Castle, freshmen; and Elizabeth Shear, Pittsburgh, and Chalmers Houston, Ben Avon.

Aluminum Plant At New Kensington Tied Up By Strike

Report 7,500 Employes Are Affected — Complete Shutdown Of Plant Is Forced

(International News Service)

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 22 About 7,500 employes of the New Kensington works of the Aluminum Company of America went out on strike today, forcing a complete shutdown on national defense orders for airplane and army field kitchen units.

Union spokesmen said the strike was called when the company refused to discharge an unidentified union member who was reported more than a year delinquent in his dues.

About 350 employes in the sheet mill walked out yesterday. At a membership meeting held last night, union officials said, about 1,000 members of the CIO union voted to go on strike at 6 a. m.

The night shift left the mills and pickets were thrown up around the plant at the scheduled time without disorder, police said.

Company officials reported they had investigated the grievance of the union and found that they would not be "justified" in firing the man.

A conference was scheduled between union and company officials for today.

The strike was termed "a spontaneous action by members who are extremely irritated over defiance expressed by the few delinquents by union representatives.

The plant at present is working on aviation requirements for the army and navy, company officials said, and is also filling a $1,200,000 order for 25,500 full sets of field kitchens.

One of the questions asked aliens who are refused citizenship papers or who are continued until the next court is "have you registered as an alien". Carl W. Starliper, examiner for the federal government, who is holding naturalization court includes this question for all such applicants. Many of them have not, apparently believing that their petition for citizenship obviated the necessity of registering. All aliens, which means every person who is not a citizen must register at the post office before December 26.

Four times a day the oath of allegiance is administered to the successful applicants by Judge W. Walter Braham. Before the oath is administered Judge Braham explains to the class what it means. In part he says "you are today renouncing allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince or potentate. You are about to take the oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and the laws. Here in the United States we do not swear allegiance to any man, not even to the president, but to the Constitution. We do not want anybody taking the oath of allegiance unless they really mean it."

Miss Emma Carson, deputy prothonotary, then administers the oath in which they promise to support, obey and defend the Constitution and the laws from all enemies, foreign and domestic.

After 12 years of searching the minute book of 1859 covering the proceedings of the county commissioners has been found. It was the second book used by the commissioners and when William A. Eakin took the post of chief clerk 12 years ago he endeavored to find it to complete the file.

Ever since then he has searched for the book at times but to no avail. On Thursday morning A. F. Wilkins, who has charge of compiling and indexing records for the court house, discovered the book deep down among a pile of old books that were thought to have no value.

The old book will be rebound and placed in the file of minute books. The chief clerk in 1859 was J. P. Leslie.

One of the questions asked aliens who are refused citizenship papers or who are continued until the next court is "have you registered as an alien". Carl W. Starliper, examiner for the federal government, who is holding naturalization court includes this question for all such applicants. Many of them have not, apparently believing that their petition for citizenship obviated the necessity of registering. All aliens, which means every person who is not a citizen must register at the post office before December 26.

Four times a day the oath of allegiance is administered to the successful applicants by Judge W. Walter Braham. Before the oath is administered Judge Braham explains to the class what it means. In part he says "you are today renouncing allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince or potentate. You are about to take the oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and the laws. Here in the United States we do not swear allegiance to any man, not even to the president, but to the Constitution. We do not want anybody taking the oath of allegiance unless they really mean it."

Miss Emma Carson, deputy prothonotary, then administers the oath in which they promise to support, obey and defend the Constitution and the laws from all enemies, foreign and domestic.

After 12 years of searching the minute book of 1859 covering the proceedings of the county commissioners has been found. It was the second book used by the commissioners and when William A. Eakin took the post of chief clerk 12 years ago he endeavored to find it to complete the file.

Ever since then he has searched for the book at times but to no avail. On Thursday morning A. E. Wilkins, who has charge of compiling and indexing records for the court house, discovered the book deep down among a pile of old books that were thought to have no value.

The old book will be rebound and placed in the file of minute books. The chief clerk in 1859 was J. P. Leslie.

Holdovers Will Be Removed By Governor James

About 2000 Democratic Office-Holders Will Lose Jobs Is Report

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22—The James administration acted belatedly today to remove an estimated 2,000 holdover Democrats from the state payroll.

Jobholders appointed during the Democratic Earle administration were warned to resign unless they can produce a Republican sponsor. Many were slated to go within the next fortnight.

Orders for the house cleaning were issued in consequence of demands from Republican county leaders for jobs for their followers. New surveys were undertaken in most departments to ascertain the number of employes likely to be affected.

Appeals for a final purge of Earle holdovers, increased yesterday as party leaders stormed state committee headquarters and the governor's office. Administration chieftains were urged to make replacements at the earliest possible moment.

Callers at the governor's chambers included Jay Cooke, Philadelphia, who unsuccessfully tried to defeat U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey in the November 5 election; Republican national committeeman G. Mason Owlett and James F. Malone, Pittsburgh leader.

In addition, Republican chairman from a half dozen counties, including Northampton, Dauphin and Green, visited Republican state Chairman James F. Torrance and asked for jobs for party workers.

The Department of Revenue, Secretary William J. Hamilton, presented the least problem insofar as cleaning out of holdovers is concerned. Of the 3,700 Democrats in the department when Hamilton assumed charge in January, 1939, only a handful have been retained.

A number of Democrats were reported to be making frenzied efforts to find refuge in the Democratic-controlled state treasury and auditor general's department.

Father Files Damage Suit Against Son

ALIQUIPPA, Nov. 22.—Dr. J. A. Stevens, prominent Aliquippa physician and former president of the Beaver County Tuberculosis Association, entered a suit in the Columbiana county courts, Lisbon, O., for $51,000 against his son, John A. Stevens, Jr., 24, for injuries the doctor sustained in an automobile collision near East Palestine, O., two years ago, it was learned here today.

Another action for $36,000 was filed against young Stevens by Mrs. Mary Ellen Koch of Philadelphia, a passenger in Dr. Stevens' automobile when the son's car allegedly crashed into the back of the doctor's machine.

Dr. Stevens, who has not practiced since the accident, asserted that he had been permanently disabled and had to give up a $15,000 a year practice as a result of his injuries.

State To Keep Roads Cleared

Over Thousand Miles Added To Snow Clearance Work This Year

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22.—Maintenance forces of the Department of Highways are prepared for their annual battle with the elements to keep a record breaking mileage of roads on the State highway open for winter travel.

Last week end the district engineers, maintenance engineers and superintendents were in Harrisburg for a conference with Department officials dealing with winter maintenance of which snow removal was the chief topic of discussion.

During the coming winter the Department has a snow removal program of 19,236 miles, or more than 1020 miles greater than a year ago. The program this year is the largest in the history of the Department. To meet the demands of this enlarged program the Department has purchased 249 new trucks and 271 new plows mostly to replace worn-out equipment.

Lawrence county road mileage listed for snow removal totals 188.68 miles.

Stevens, Jr., 24, for injuries the doctor sustained in an automobile collision near East Palestine, O., two years ago, it was learned here today.

Another action for $36,000 was filed against young Stevens by Mrs. Mary Ellen Koch of Philadelphia, a passenger in Dr. Stevens' automobile when the son's car allegedly crashed into the back of the doctor's machine.

Dr. Stevens, who has not practiced since the accident, asserted that he had been permanently disabled and had to give up a $15,000 a year practice as a result of his injuries.

State To Keep Roads Cleared

Over Thousand Miles Added To Snow Clearance Work This Year

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22.—Maintenance forces of the Department of Highways are prepared for their annual battle with the elements to keep a record breaking mileage of roads on the State highway open for winter travel.

Last week end the district engineers, maintenance engineers and superintendents were in Harrisburg for a conference with Department officials dealing with winter maintenance of which snow removal was the chief topic of discussion.

During the coming winter the Department has a snow removal program of 19,236 miles, or more than 1020 miles greater than a year ago. The program this year is the largest in the history of the Department. To meet the demands of this enlarged program the Department has purchased 249 new trucks and 271 new plows mostly to replace worn-out equipment.

Lawrence county road mileage listed for snow removal totals 189.68 miles.

NEW CASTLE HIGH DEFEATS WARREN HARDING 33-0

Locals Impress Crowd At Warren By Fine Showing

New Castle High Finishes Season Undefeated, Tied But Once; Seven Regulars Play Final Game; Al Bucci, Ernie Adamo And Ciazza Are Standout Performers In Turkey Day Game; Warren Never Inside New Castle 24-Yard Line; Crowd Of 6,000 See Battle.

PLAYING before a Thanksgiving day crowd of some 6,000 fans, the New Castle High "Red Hurricane" football team rang down the 1940 curtain at Warren, O., on Thursday afternoon with a 33 to 0 defeat of the Warren Harding High eleven. New Castle had more deception than a magician as they thrilled the fans with every conceivable kind of football to completely route the Ohioans. It was the tenth victory of the season for the New Castle team and leaves them undefeated, but tied once.

In registering their victory New Castle High saw for the last time the brilliant Sammy Ciazza, Larry Roberts, Al Bucci, Joe Audino, Ernie Adamo, Warren Morgan and Tomalello, all of whom played great football, especially Bucci at left end and Adamo at left guard, their line play causing many fine things to be said about them.

Don Jerry handled the team at quarterback and did a swell job in his farewell to scholastic football. Freddy McKee was in uniform yesterday and acted as co-captain along with Larry Roberts, but did not get in the game, due to his injured leg.

Roberts Scores First

New Castle had a touchdown almost before the late comers had settled in their seats. Johnson kicked off to New Castle at the start. Roberts got the ball on the 10 and came back to the 35 before being downed.

The "Red Hurricane" began a steady downfield march, recording three first downs in a row with the New Castle team finally having the ball on the Warren one-yard line as the result of the Statue of Liberty play, Lee handing the ball to Ciazza on the Warren 31-yard line, and it looked as if Ciazza was over, but he wasn't, and on the next play Roberts knifed through right tackle and was over. Adamo kicked the extra-point. New Castle 7, Warren 0.

Warren's lone threat of the game came midway in the first period. Adamo kicked off to Warren after the first New Castle touchdown. Warren never gave up the ball until the New Castle 24-yard line was reached. In the Warren march from the Warren 20, Exler and Williams did some fine ball carrying. A bad break gave Warren the ball on the New Castle 44 when Roberts fumbled a punt by Exler, and Lyons recovered. From this time on Warren was stopped when they threatened to invade New Castle territory.

Bucci Intercepts Pass

The first period ended with Warren having the ball on a punt by Bucci on the Warren 48-yard line after a couple of plays following the kick by Bucci.

NEW CASTLE'S RECORD

New Castle	14	Grove City	6
New Castle	6	Butler	6
New Castle	19	Youngstown E.	7
New Castle	19	Beaver Falls	0
New Castle	25	Sharon	0
New Castle	34	McKeesport	12
New Castle	33	Washington	0
New Castle	31	J. Adams, Cleve.	0
New Castle	13	Johnstown	0
New Castle	13	Campbell	7
New Castle	33	Warren Harding	0
Total	240	Totals	38

To open the second period Warren elected to cross up the New Castle team by tossing a forward pass, Williams faded back to pass and seeing that he was covered let fly with the ball and Al Bucci, the big New Castle left end, picked it out of the ozone and sped 40 some yards behind nice blocks by his mates and was over with the second New Castle touchdown. The extra-point by Adamo was no good as he attempted to run the ball and was thrown for a loss. Lyons of Warren took a swing at Adamo as the New Castle boy lay on the ground and was promptly tossed out of the ball game. New Castle 13, Warren 0.

Lee Passes To Bucci

A fumble by Larson of Warren after Adamo had kicked off to Warren following the second New Castle marker paved the way for the third touchdown. A bad pass that was fumbled gave New Castle the ball on the Warren 20. Roberts and Jerry both tried the line and failed to gain. Lee faded back and shot a perfect "strike-pass" to Al Bucci who was standing on the goal line. Bucci leaped in the air between two Warren men and came down with the pigskin firmly clasped in his arms. He had to take a step or two to register the third touchdown. Adamo missed the extra-point by placement. New Castle 19, Warren 0.

New Castle with 19 points was content to just hold their lead until the first half ended, with Warren in possession of the ball on their own 46-yard line.

Ciazza Crashes Ball Over

Sammy Ciazza scored the fourth New Castle touchdown in the middle of the third period. New Castle received the ball on a kick by Andress, and never gave up the ball until Ciazza was over for his marker.

This was perhaps the most exciting part of the game, as the Warren line certainly stiffened at this point and held New Castle on the one-foot and 6-inch line on different tries by Roberts and Lee, then Sammy Ciazza from the one-yard line managed to get the ball over. How New Castle happened to get the ball back one yard after having it on the six-inch line was due to a Warren penalty which gave New Castle the ball on the one-yard line and erased a down, as Warren could not be penalized over the goal line. Adamo passed to Bucci for the extra-point. New Castle 26, Warren 0.

Otis Burris Tallies

Adamo recovered a fumble by Exler on the New Castle 41, just before the third period ended, and Bucci punted to Warren on the Warren 22-yard line as the gun sounded the end of the period.

The Warren team, led by Williams and Exler, tried desperately to gain some ground in the fourth period, but couldn't crack the big New Castle front wall. New Castle just after the middle of the fourth period had been reached got the ball on a kick by Andress, who punted a nice one that Ciazza picked up on the 5-yard line. Otis Burris replaced Roberts at left half for New Castle. Burris was held for no gain. Warren was penalized five yards for offside. Ciazza made two yards, and again carried the ball making a first down on the New Castle 24-yard line. Lee passed to Ciazza and after a 35 or 40-yard gallop during which he was thought to be down several times, the slippery Ciazza made his way to the eight-yard line where he was hauled down by the Warren secondary.

New Castle drew a five-yard penalty for offside. Piccuta carried the ball for three yards. Lee made five yards and on the next play Burris turned right end and tallied the fifth and final touchdown. Adamo made the extra-point by placement. New Castle 33, Warren 0.

Adamo kicked off for New Castle, and by this time Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh had just about emptied the bench of subs and there was just time for a play or two by Warren and the 1940 season was over for both teams. New Castle was delirious with victory, it was the fifth defeat for the Warren team.

Play Here Next Year

In the first downs department, strange as it seems, the Warren team had the better of it, scoring 10 to 7 for New Castle. Warren had a fine backfield, but a rather weak line. New Castle deserves all the credit in the world for their splendid victory, looking every inch champions.

A crowd of perhaps 400 to 500 from New Castle saw the game. The day was perfect for football, with a warm sun. The turf was a little slippery, due to the Wednesday night rain.

Warren will play New Castle here next fall, dispelling rumors that New Castle is dropping Ohio schools.

Charity Game Tickets Ready

General Chairman Chris Clark of the Charity football game at Taggart Stadium Thursday, November 28 (Thanksgiving Day), between the Wabash Bears and Youngstown Rams, announced today that the advance sale of tickets will begin at once.

The tickets are now off the press and will be distributed at vantage spots throughout the city. The Red Cross and Community Chest Fund will benefit from the game proceeds.

In the event of a nice day, no doubt several hundred will see the football battle between the New Castle semi-pro champs and the Youngstown city champions. The kickoff is set for 2:30 o'clock.

Fighters To End Boxing Saturday

Want To Be Minus Fractures And Possible Cuts Monday

SEVERAL TOPNOTCH BOUTS SCHEDULED

Most of the veteran fighters who will appear for the Jefferson A. C. in the Arena, Monday night, will do no boxing in training Saturday and Sunday to escape the possibility of fracturing a hand or incurring a gash above an eye. Because the coming battles are regarded as important in amateur ranks of this vicinity, none of them desire to take any pre-fight chances.

Billy Garrett of McKeesport has never fought here. He captured the welterweight championship when the police staged a tourney at McKeesport and naturally, would be elated should he succeed in knocking out Ted Delarado of East Liverpool, who holds the 147-pound championship of West Virginia.

Local Boxers To Appear

Another scrap which is eagerly looked toward is the Frankie Genaro of Youngstown vs. Sonny Horne of Niles, 147 pounds clash. Genaro delivered a "paralyzer" to Jimmie West of Bellevue here recently but, when he essayed to whip Horne several nights later in Youngstown, he was floored twice and lost the decision. According to supporters he has been training hard and wants to beat Horne.

Billy Reale of Castlewood will take on Eddie Bynum of McKeesport, at 160, who claims to have scored a knockout over Tommy Yarosz of Monaca, prior to Tommy's leap into the professional ranks and Russell Baxter, at 147, will give Peter Misto of Youngstown, another chance. Baxter outboxed Peter in Grove City recently.

Report Rose Is Flashy

Sonny Rose of McKees Rocks, who has been referred to as the Willie Davies of amateur ranks, will fight Ossie Pegese of Youngstown at 112. If Rose flashes any of the boxing ability and grace of feet that marked Davies career and Pege does likewise, the fans will have witnessed a bout worthwhile.

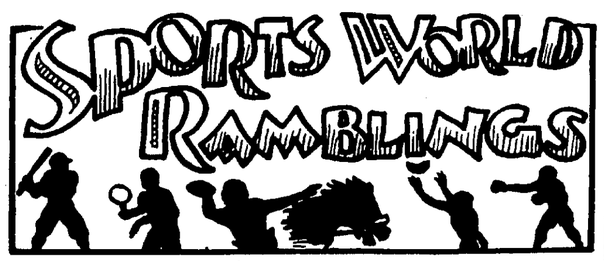

Two twins, Gussie and Sammy Vargo of Pittsburgh, will clash with Chris Tabor of Niles at 142 and Mello Donelli, also of Niles, at 135. It will be the first time in the fistic history of the city that a set of twins have fought in the same ring on the same night.

Billy Jackson of East Liverpool, a training partner of Delarado will oppose Al Kozak a southpaw of McKees Rocks in one of the early amateur bouts.

Baxter and Reale are training at the Jefferson A. C.

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Boy Scouts from the state of Michigan enjoyed their 17th annual football get-together on the Michigan State College campus on the occasion of the Kansas State game November 2 this year. Last year 8,200 scouts, their drivers and leaders were guests of the athletic association.

Don Vasberg, Marquette's star end, is a quarter-miler and javelin thrower. He will captain the 1941 track team.

Pigskin roundup:—With the use of the eenie-meenie-minee-mo system and a new shiny copper, here's how the giddy swine hide carnival looks from this nook:

Penn State at Pitt—State bucked up against one fair foe, Syracuse, and seemed to be confused. Their spirits buoyed by last week's showing, we'll stick the classier club, Pitt, 18-6...

Duquesne at Villanova — The Dukes seem to have hit the groove and figure to cop by a 14-7 margin....

Colgate at Columbia—Eenie-meenie-minee-mo and it's Colgate, 7-6.

Cornell at Penn U.—These behemoths may stage one of the thrillers of the day. Cornell has more versatility and should win by an 18-7 count. . . .

Dartmouth at Brown—That reverse decision injected confidence into those Indians. Dartmouth has a 14-6 edge....

Geo. Washington at Georgetown—On paper, the Hoyas are at least three touchdowns better than their city rivals. We'll be conversative and say, 14-0....

Harvard at Yale—The top game for both elevens. We'll string along with Harvard. After a tough fight, Harvard, 13-7....

Manhattan at Holy Cross—The Crusaders are in top condition against a somewhat crippled Jasper outfit. H. C. shapes up as an 18-6 winner....

Indiana at Purdue—One of the toughest to pick. The coin is heads and Purdue, 13-7....

Illinois at Iowa—Inspired by their win over Notre Dame, the Hawkeyes should tuck this one away by a 15-6 margin. ...

Michigan at Ohio State—Harmon and Westfall give Michigan at 21-13 edge....

Minnesota at Wisconsin—Our No 1 team to crumble the Badgers, 21-6....

Mississippi at Mississippi State—Eenie-meenie and its Mississippi, 14-7....

Notre Dame at Northwestern—One shouldn't hesitate on this one after the Irish's showing during the past three week-ends. N. D. seemed to be playing under a strain. That condition gone, the Irish to knock-off the bucket, 13-7....

Army at Princeton — Princeton should topple the spot with ease, especially if the track is dry. It should be an 18-0 count at least....

New Castle High Finishes Season Undefeated, Tied But Once; Seven Regulars Play Final Game; Al Bucci, Ernie Adamo And Ciazza Are Standout Performers In Turkey Day Game; Warren Never Inside New Castle 24-Yard Line; Crowd Of 6,000 See Battle.

PLAYING before a Thanksgiving day crowd of some 6,000 fans, the New Castle High "Red Hurricane" football team rang down the 1940 curtain at Warren, O., on Thursday afternoon with a 33 to 0 defeat of the Warren Harding High eleven. New Castle had more deception than a magician as they thrilled the fans with every conceivable kind of football to completely route the Ohioans. It was the tenth victory of the season for the New Castle team and leaves them undefeated, but tied once.

In registering their victory New Castle High saw for the last time the brilliant Sammy Ciazza, Larry Roberts, Al Bucci, Joe Audino, Ernie Adamo, Warren Morgan and Tomalello, all of whom played great football, especially Bucci at left end and Adamo at left guard, their line play causing many fine things to be said about them.

Don Jerry handled the team at quarterback and did a swell job in his farewell to scholastic football. Freddy McKee was in uniform yesterday and acted as co-captain along with Larry Roberts, but did not get in the game, due to his injured leg.

Roberts Scores First

New Castle had a touchdown almost before the late comers had settled in their seats. Johnson kicked off to New Castle at the start, Roberts got the ball on the 10 and came back to the 35 before being downed.

The "Red Hurricane" began a steady downfield march, recording three first downs in a row with the New Castle team finally having the ball on the Warren one-yard line as the result of the Statue of Liberty play, Lee handing the ball to Ciazza on the Warren 31-yard line, and it looked as if Ciazza was over, but he wasn't, and on the next play Roberts knifed through right tackle and was over. Adamo kicked the extra-point. New Castle 7, Warren 0.

Warren's lone threat of the game came midway in the first period. Adamo kicked off to Warren after the first New Castle touchdown. Warren never gave up the ball until the New Castle 24-yard line was reached. In the Warren march from the Warren 20, Exler and Williams did some fine ball carrying. A bad break gave Warren the ball on the New Castle 44 when Roberts fumbled a punt by Exler, and Lyons recovered. From this time on Warren was stopped when they threatened to invade New Castle territory.

Bucci Intercepts Pass

The first period ended with Warren having the ball on a punt by Bucci on the Warren 48-yard line after a couple of plays following the kick by Bucci.

NEW CASTLE'S RECORD

To open the second period Warren elected to cross up the New Castle team by tossing a forward pass, Williams faded back to pass and seeing that he was covered let fly with the ball and Al Bucci, the big New Castle left end, picked it out of the ozone and sped 40 some yards behind nice blocks by his mates and was over with the second New Castle touchdown. The extra-point by Adamo was no good as he attempted to run the ball and was thrown for a loss. Lyons of Warren took a swing at Adamo as the New Castle boy lay on the ground and was promptly tossed out of the ball game. New Castle 13, Warren 0.

Lee Passes To Bucci

A fumble by Larson of Warren after Adamo had kicked off to Warren following the second New Castle marker paved the way for the third touchdown. A bad pass that was fumbled gave New Castle the ball on the Warren 20. Roberts and Jerry both tried the line and failed to gain. Lee faded back and shot a perfect "strike-pass" to Al Bucci who was standing on the goal line. Bucci leaped in the air between two Warren men and came down with the pigskin firmly clasped in his arms. He had to take a step or two to register the third touchdown. Adamo missed the extra-point by placement. New Castle 19, Warren 0.

New Castle with 19 points was content to just hold their lead until the first half ended, with Warren in possession of the ball on their own 46-yard line.

Ciazza Crashes Ball Over

Sammy Ciazza scored the fourth New Castle touchdown in the middle of the third period. New Castle received the ball on a kick by Andress, and never gave up the ball until Ciazza was over for his marker.

This was perhaps the most exciting part of the game, as the Warren line certainly stiffened at this point and held New Castle on the one-foot and 6-inch line on different tries by Roberts and Lee, then Sammy Ciazza from the one-yard line managed to get the ball over. How New Castle happened to get the ball back one yard after having it on the six-inch line was due to a Warren penalty which gave New Castle the ball on the one-yard line and erased a down, as Warren could not be penalized over the goal line. Adamo passed to Bucci for the extra-point. New Castle 26, Warren 0.

Otis Burris Tallies

Adamo recovered a fumble by Exler on the New Castle 41, just before the third period ended, and Bucci punted to Warren on the Warren 22-yard line as the gun sounded the end of the period.

The Warren team, led by Williams and Exler, tried desperately to gain some ground in the fourth period, but couldn't crack the big New Castle front wall. New Castle just after the middle of the fourth period had been reached got the ball on a kick by Andress, who punted a nice one that Ciazza picked up on the 5-yard line. Otis Burris replaced Roberts at left half for New Castle.. Burris was held for no gain. Warren was penalized five yards for offside. Ciazza made two yards, and again carried the ball making a first down on the New Castle 24-yard line. Lee passed to Ciazza and after a 35 or 40-yard gallop during which he was thought to be down several times, the slippery Ciazza made his way to the eight-yard line where he was hauled down by the Warren secondary.

New Castle drew a five-yard penalty for offside. Piccuta carried the ball for three yards. Lee made five yards and on the next play Burris turned right end and tallied the fifth and final touchdown. Adamo made the extra-point by placement. New Castle 33, Warren 0.

Adamo kicked off for New Castle, and by this time Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh had just about emptied the bench of subs and there was just time for a play or two by Warren and the 1940 season was over for both teams. New Castle was delirious with victory, it was the fifth defeat for the Warren team.

Play Here Next Year

In the first downs department, strange as it seems, the Warren team had the better of it, scoring 10 to 7 for New Castle. Warren had a fine backfield, but a rather weak line. New Castle deserves all the credit in the world for their splendid victory, looking every inch champions.

A crowd of perhaps 400 to 500 from New Castle saw the game. The day was perfect for football, with a warm sun. The turf was a little slippery, due to the Wednesday night rain.

Warren will play New Castle here next fall, dispelling rumors that New Castle is dropping Ohio schools.

Charity Game Tickets Ready

General Chairman Chris Clark of the Charity football game at Taggart Stadium Thursday, November 28 (Thanksgiving Day), between the Wabash Bears and Youngstown Rams, announced today that the advance sale of tickets will begin at once.

The tickets are now off the press and will be distributed at vantage spots throughout the city. The Red Cross and Community Chest Fund will benefit from the game proceeds.

In the event of a nice day, no doubt several hundred will see the football battle between the New Castle semi-pro champs and the Youngstown city champions. The kickoff is set for 2:30 o'clock.

Fighters To End Boxing Saturday

Want To Be Minus Fractures And Possible Cuts Monday

SEVERAL TOPNOTCH BOUTS SCHEDULED

Most of the veteran fighters who will appear for the Jefferson A. C. in the Arena, Monday night, will do no boxing in training Saturday and Sunday to escape the possibility of fracturing a hand or incurring a gash above an eye. Because the coming battles are regarded as important in amateur ranks of this vicinity, none of them desire to take any pre-fight chances.

Billy Garrett of McKeesport has never fought here. He captured the welterweight championship when the police staged a tourney at McKeesport and naturally, would be elated should he succeed in knocking out Ted Delarado of East Liverpool, who holds the 147-pound championship of West Virginia.

Local Boxers To Appear

Another scrap which is eagerly looked toward is the Frankie Genaro of Youngstown vs. Sonny Horne of Niles, 147 pounds clash, Genaro delivered a "paralyzer" to Jimmie West of Bellevue here recently but, when he essayed to whip Horne several nights later in Youngstown, he was floored twice and lost the decision. According to supporters he has been training hard and wants to beat Horne.

Billy Reale of Castlewood will take on Eddie Bynum of McKeesport, at 160, who claims to have scored a knockout over Tommy Yarosz of Monaca, prior to Tommy's leap into the professional ranks and Russell Baxter, at 147, will give Peter Misto of Youngstown, another chance. Baxter outboxed Peter in Grove City recently.

Report Rose Is Flashy

Sonny Rose of McKees Rocks, who has been referred to as the Willie Davies of amateur ranks, will fight Ossie Pegese of Youngstown at 112. If Rose flashes any of the boxing ability and grace of feet that marked Davies career and Pege does likewise, the fans will have witnessed a bout worthwhile.

Two twins, Gussie and Sammy Vargo of Pittsburgh, will clash with Chris Tabor of Niles at 142 and Mello Donelli, also of Niles, at 135. It will be the first time in the fistic history of the city that a set of twins have fought in the same ring on the same night.

Billy Jackson of East Liverpool, a training partner of Delarado will oppose Al Kozak a southpaw of McKees Rocks in one of the early amateur bouts.

Baxter and Reale are training at the Jefferson A. C.

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Boy Scouts from the state of Michigan enjoyed their 17th annual football get-together on the Michigan State College campus on the occasion of the Kansas State game November 2 this year. Last year 8,200 scouts, their drivers and leaders were guests of the athletic association.

Don Vasberg, Marquette's star end, is a quarter-miler and javelin thrower. He will captain the 1941 track team.

Pigskin roundup:—With the use of the eenie-meenie-minee-mo system and a new shiny copper, here's how the giddy swine hide carnival looks from this nook:

Penn State at Pitt—State bucked up against one fair foe, Syracuse, and seemed to be confused. Their spirits buoyed by last week's showing, we'll stick the classier club, Pitt, 18-6....

Duquesne at Villanova — The Dukes seem to have hit the groove and figure to cop by a 14-7 margin....

Colgate at Columbia—Eenie-meenie-minee-mo and it's Colgate, 7-6.

Cornell at Penn U.—These behemoths may stage one of the thrillers of the day. Cornell has more versatility and should win by an 18-7 count. . . .

Dartmouth at Brown—That reverse decision injected confidence into those Indians. Dartmouth has a 14-6 edge....

Geo. Washington at Georgetown—On paper, the Hoyas are at least three touchdowns better than their city rivals. We'll be conversative and say, 14-0....

Harvard at Yale—The top game for both elevens. We'll string along with Harvard. After a tough fight, Harvard, 13-7....

Manhattan at Holy Cross—The Crusaders are in top condition against a somewhat crippled Jasper outfit. H. C. shapes up as an 18-6 winner....

Indiana at Purdue—One of the toughest to pick. The coin is heads and Purdue, 13-7....

Illinois at Iowa—Inspired by their win over Notre Dame, the Hawkeyes should tuck this one away by a 15-6 margin. ...

Michigan at Ohio State—Harmon and Westfall give Michigan at 21-13 edge....

Minnesota at Wisconsin—Our No 1 team to crumble the Badgers, 21-6....

Mississippi at Mississippi State—Eenie-meenie and its Mississippi, 14-7....

Notre Dame at Northwestern—One shouldn't hesitate on this one after the Irish's showing during the past three week-ends. N. D. seemed to be playing under a strain. That condition gone, the Irish to knock-off the bucket, 13-7....

Army at Princeton — Princeton should topple the spot with ease, especially if the track is dry. It should be an 18-0 count at least....

Bessemer High Eleven Honored

Banquet Held Thursday Night; Denny Schill Is Principal Speaker

A. G. CAPEZZUTI IS TOASTMASTER

Bessemer High's 1940 gridiron season officially ended Thursday evening with a banquet honoring one of the most gallant elevens to ever flaunt the school's colors.

Some 65 persons were huddled in a cozy room on the second floor of the institution, most of them present to congratulate a fine squad of young men.

Miss Mary Haig, domestic science teacher, supervised the kitchen maneuvers. Miss Haig, assisted by junior class girls, prepared a turkey dinner that scored a knockout.

A. G. Capezzuti, one of the most successful Class B. tutors in the district, discarded his coaching robe and turned toastmaster. In the new role, the Bessemer mentor proved quite adept. In fact, he was so good that he need never worry about delving into a new field if he decides to forsake the coaching fraternity.

Nord Speaks

Gerald Nord, superintendent of Bessemer High, congratulated the squad. He commented the boys for their spirit and sportsmanship. Dr. F. D. Campbell, head of the Bessemer school board, spoke briefly and complimented the athletes.

Roy DeArment, a member of the school board and one of the staunchest athletic supporters in the community, spoke briefly. Joe Wallage, another member of the board, was introduced. Tony Navarra and Joe Robb, two members of Hillsville's school board, were introduced.

So-Captains Joe McCree and Paul Drakuschakt hanked their mates for the fine cooperation and spirit shown during the season. Robert Lytle, assistant coach, lauded the boys' achievements.

Schill Main Speaker

Denny Schill, of Ellwood City, delivered the principal address. "When a coach looks over his squad, he doesn't look for all beef and brawn. He searches for mental factors, such as loyalty, a will to win and spirit." Schill pointed out. He urged the boys to give everything they have, both on the football field and in life. Being an official, Schill urged the athletes to always be gentlemen.

Coach Capezzuti mentioned a few incidents gleaned during the past season. He congratulated the boys, thanked them for their support and wished the departing seniors lots of luck.

Departing seniors include:

Carmen Pezzuolo, Frank Squelgia, William Oblak, Paul Drahuschak, John Tonkovich, Joe Ferk, John Kertell, Joe McCree, Glenn Johnston, Evar Swanson, Paul Johnson, Louis Liccisano, Carl Guyletto, Frank Galletta and Joe Geneva.

Jenkins Favored In Bout Tonight

Lightweight Champion From Sweetwater, Texas, Should Defeat Pete Lello

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Ol' Rawhide, otherwise Lew Jenkins, of Sweetwater, Tex., comes back into Madison Square Garden tonight to defend the world lightweight championship against one of the several people who have stopped him, but the odds were 8 to 5 on him to win one way or another from Pete Lello, Gary, Ind., challenger. No one has been able to figure out yet how Lello ever managed to knock Jenkins into a fish-eyed heap in a previous meeting 18 months ago.

Subsequent to that incident, Lello went on about his business of compiling one of the least prepossessing records ever to get a challenger into the ring for a titular battle.

WILL SHOOT AT ALLIANCE

The New Castle rifle club will go to Alliance, Ohio, tonight for a league shoot. All members who are going to make the trip are to meet at 7 o'clock at the corner of Grant and Jefferson streets.

Transmute, successful sire of race horses for many years, is a descendant of a chestnut mare known as Castagnette that was bred in England by Lord Portsmouth in 1871.

Fourteen Pitt Men In Final Game Saturday

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22—Fourteen Panthers will be playing their final home game when Pitt and Penn State meet in the Pitt Stadium, seven of them due to start the game.

The Pitt line, which in the last two games has put up superb defensive exhibitions will lose an end, both tackles, and a guard. Three-fourths of the starting backfield will graduate. In addition, there are seven reserves who will be on the ready list for the last time.

On the line Rudy Gradisek of Hermine, who has played more football than any other member of the team, having been a second team guard in 1938, and a regular for the past two years, leaves a fine record behind him. Pitt hasn't met his superior this fall.

Ted Konetsky from German township and Jack Benz from Pittsburgh, the two tackles, have played consistently good football since early season. Their work in rushing passers has been unexcelled and Captain Konetsky has roved the field to stop ball-carriers on both sides of the line.

Jack Goodridge, of Washington, at right end got his chance when Joe Rettinger was injured, and he has played like a veteran ever since. He has been the team's best pass receiver, and his defensive work has stood out.

In the backfield the losses will be Mike Sekela, veteran quarterback from Windber, Bobby Thurbon, hard-driving halfback from Erie, and George Kracum, the big power and passing fullback from Hazleton.

Most missed among the finishing reserves will be Ernie Bonelli of Blawnox, sub right half and starting back in 1939; Harris Hawkins, from New Martinsville, W. Va., light but aggressive guard and center. Al Gurczenski of Jeannette and Earl Pressell of Holidaysburg, also graduate.

Others are Paul Foley of Swissvale, guard; Carl Sardi of Clarion, end; Louis Sieber of Hermine, halfback.

The other senior is Joe Rettinger of Ashland, regular left end, out since the S. M. U. game with a broken ankle.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE GAMES FOR LAST BIG FOOTBALL SATURDAY

Going into the final weeks of the football campaign, conference struggles headline the national card for Saturday, Nov. 23. Ohio State and Michigan collide at Columbus, O., before an estimated 80,000. Mississippi State and Mississippi fight it out in the southeast. California and Stanford meet on the coast. Tennessee pits its bowl bid against Kentucky. Penn will try to smack Cornell. Auburn clashes with Boston college. Northwestern tries to smirch the Notre Dame record at Evanston.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Nathan Mann, Hamden heavyweight, has signed a five-year contract with Joe Gould, New York manager who piloted Jimmy Braddock to the world title several years ago.

Marshall Leong, Chinese fullback, and a good one, isn't at St. Mary's this year. He decided to forego his sophomore year for a season and work instead. Tab him for future seasons.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Not since 1933 has the New Castle High School football team had such a record. No games were lost this year . . . one tie can't be considered as a game lost. Now that the season is over . . . the players will really get down to some very serious school work . . . at least some of them will . . . some will however go on to basketball fame . . . all those who partake in school games must keep up their school work . . . but when a game is not on their mind . . . more time can be spent with their books and girls . . . so the football season as far as the High School team is concerned, is over . . . next Thursday, Thanksgiving, the Wabash Bears will play the Youngstown Rams at the stadium . . . a large crowd is expected to witness the game . . . what is Thanksgiving without a game . . . proceeds from this game will be divided between the Community Chest and the local Red Cross . . . do your bit . . . see the game and help the worthy causes.

* * *

We were very much surprised to see this column mentioned in the paper last night . . . it seems that a poem that we published and which was written by Mamie L. Smiley of New Castle, titled, "God Save the British," was clipped and sent to England, where it was read by the preachers of that country . . . our British friends . . . we want you to know that we meant these words and that the citizens of this country are really saying prayers for your victory . . . as your victory means freedom for all those who love freedom.

* * *

It seems that some little talk has been in progress concerning the idea of changing from street cars to buses . . . we feel sure that the citizens will back the transportation company 100 per cent when this change is made . . . in other words—New Castle will play ball.

Accompanying some clothing gifts for the Johnson Triplets was this letter by a 3-year-old girl:

"Happy birthday to Thomas Matthew, Clara Mae and Ann Johnson. . . I am a little girl 3 years old and I hope you can wear these dresses. I'm sorry I don't have things for Thomas . . . I wanted to take these myself but Daddy said I was too little . . . I hope you have a very happy birthday."

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Not since 1933 has the New Castle High School football team had such a record. No games were lost this year . . . one tie can't be considered as a game lost. Now that the season is over . . . the players will really get down to some very serious school work . . . at least some of them will . . . some will however go on to basketball fame . . . all those who partake in school games must keep up their school work . . . but when a game is not on their mind . . . more time can be spent with their books and girls . . . so the football season as far as the High School team is concerned, is over . . . next Thursday, Thanksgiving, the Wabash Bears will play the Youngstown Rams at the stadium . . . a large crowd is expected to witness the game . . . what is Thanksgiving without a game . . . proceeds from this game will be divided between the Community Chest and the local Red Cross . . . do your bit . . . see the game and help the worthy causes.

* * *

We were very much surprised to see this column mentioned in the paper last night . . . it seems that a poem that we published and which was written by Mamie L. Smiley of New Castle, titled, "God Save the British," was clipped and sent to England, where it was read by the preachers of that country . . . our British friends . . . we want you to know that we meant those words and that the citizens of this country are really saying prayers for your victory . . . as your victory means freedom for all those who love freedom.

It seems that some little talk has been in progress concerning the idea of changing from street cars to buses . . . we feel sure that the citizens will back the transportation company 100 per cent when this change is made . . . in other words—New Castle will play ball.

Accompanying some clothing gifts for the Johnson Triplets was this letter by a 3-year-old girl:

"Happy birthday to Thomas Matthew, Clara Mae and Ann Johnson. . . . I am a little girl 3 years old and I hope you can wear these dresses. I'm sorry I don't have things for Thomas . . . I wanted to take these myself but Daddy said I was too little . . . I hope you have a very happy birthday."

Modest Rally In Market Prices

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The stock market today reversed its preholiday trend with a modest rally. A few leaders were up a point or more, but gains generally were of nominal proportions.

Steels were leaders on the upswing. U. S. Steel was up nearly 2 points at one time, while Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Crucible each advanced at least a point.

DuPont and Union Carbide also were up about a point, but Allied Chemical and Dow lost as much. Great Northern in the rails and American Car & Foundry in the rail equipments were others to gain a point.

American Can continued independently weak, slipping more than a point to within striking distance of its 1940 bottom.

Elsewhere fractional gains were the rule, including those in Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Kennecott, Lockheed, Pullman, Pennsylvania R. R. and Texas Corp.
